

Closing of Cigar Plant Not a Great Calamity

That Was Consensus of Opinion of Representative Business Men Thursday—Factory is For Sale But No Price Fixed—Barrel Factory to Close.

That the closing of the American Cigar Company factory on central Broadway was not a matter to become wildly excited about and that the business life of Kingston was in a far more healthy condition than other cities along the Hudson river, were some of the high points brought out Thursday evening at a meeting attended by representatives of the Chamber of Commerce, the Uptown and Downtown Business Men's Associations and the Central Business Men's Association. A committee appointed to wait on the owners of the factory was appointed and later discharged, after Max L. Reben, who had been appointed a member of the committee, urged that nothing be done at this time and gave his reasons. The meeting waxed warm when some of the leading merchants of the city rapped the Kingston leader for the agitation it had started and a motion was made and seconded asking the Kingston Leader to make what amends were possible for the stories it had printed on its front page the past few days, but the motion, when put to a vote, was lost.

The meeting that had been called originally to discuss what action could be taken in regard to the closing of the cigar factory, before it was over had developed into a discussion of what could be done to make Kingston a better city, that the cigar factory matter became a minor issue of the evening.

F. W. Heimerle, president of the Chamber of Commerce, presided at the meeting, which was attended by representatives of the three business associations. Morris Kaplan, president of the Uptown Association, Dr. Norton Low, president of the Central Association, and Harry Kaplan, president of the Downtown Association, who were present, were called upon during the evening to present their views.

Mr. Heimerle in response to questions brought out the fact that the factory building was for sale, but that the owners had refused to place a price on the property; that all of the building was occupied by other tenants with the exception of two full floors and part of a third floor; that the plant employed at the time closed about one hundred hands.

Mr. Gorman Expresses Views.

Vincent A. Gorman of Rose & Gorman was called upon by Mr. Heimerle to express his views on the subject of the meeting. Mr. Gorman said that he did not see why the city should become excited about the closing of a factory that employed about a hundred people. There had been decided worse situations in the past. It was more of a detriment to the city at the time that the former Peckham plant had lain idle for so many years.

Mr. Gorman said that if the factory was for sale let the owners place a price on it. He also stated that Kingston was in a particularly healthy business condition at the present time and that it was not likely that the condition of the stock market would affect the business life of the city. He said that it would be other cities that he thought that the merchants of Kingston were looking forward to an unusually active Christmas season.

He said that he did not like to have such a meeting as this held as the city was not in dire straits, and he did not see why they should be excited about the factory closing.

Mr. Heimerle said that he shared the views of Mr. Gorman and that the business outlook in Kingston was far more acute the past summer when the city had a strike of the building trades and two of the large plants were closed down for a time on account of the strike. He said that the closing of the factory was not the great calamity that one of the newspapers would lead them to believe.

Fred C. Winters of Clinton avenue said that one of the employees at the plant had told him that the company had recently erected one of the largest cigar factories in the world in the west and that most of the manufacture of cigars would be done at the new plant.

Mr. Morris Kaplan said he was talking with Morris Schlesinger, who was the superintendent of the factory, and that Mr. Schlesinger had told him that the factory here would not be used again for the manufacture of cigars, and that five other factories of the company would also be closed. He said that Mr. Schlesinger had told him that the factory here would be sold at a sacrifice to get rid of it.

Arthur J. Burns said that he believed that nothing could be done until the owners of the factory had fixed a reasonable price on it.

Dr. Low and Harry Kaplan had to plan to offer, and C. Ray Everett, president of the common council, was asked to speak for the city authorities.

Administration Considers Business.

Mr. Everett said that Mayor Dempsey had been called out of town and that the mayor had asked him to attend the meeting.

1930 Plates Will Be Issued Here On November 25

Second Deputy County Clerk Clinton H. Finger, in charge of the Uptown County automobile bureau, has received instructions from the State Department directing him to begin the issue of 1930 automobile license plates on November 25. The plates are now at the office of the local bureau at 237 Fair street, and on November 25 it will be possible to secure plates. This year the issuing of plates has been authorized earlier than heretofore and it is also possible to use the plates much earlier. It will be legal to use the new 1930 plates on and after December 15, although it is not compulsory to display them until January 1st when every car on the highway must display 1930 tags.

In order to avoid the usual congestion which takes place at all issuing bureaus during the last few days of the year the state has authorized the early issue of plates and also the early use of plates in the hopes that the last minute congestion will be relieved.

In Uptown county as well as other counties there is always the last minute rush and many are compelled to stand in line for hours in order to secure plates. By early application this delay is relieved and the county employees are also spared the usual last minute rush.

Application blanks will be available in most garages and it is possible to fill out blanks and mail the application to the local office. Last year stubs must accompany the application or there will be a delay.

MRS. EDWARD YOUNG RECEIVES PRESENT OF TRIP TO VIENNA.

Mrs. Edward Young of Milton, president of the New York Federation of Home Bureaus, which celebrated its tenth anniversary at a three day annual meeting at Syracuse, was honored by an unusual present from the organization—a trip to Vienna next March to attend the International Conference of rural women. The eight hundred units of the state wish to do this in appreciation of Mrs. Young's four years of leadership.

Starting as a county chairman in Uptown county, Mrs. Young has worked steadily for progressive movements and legislation to aid the rural home. She was appointed a member of a committee of 21 who made a survey of the rural school situation and worked for legislation for better rural schools. Mrs. Martha Van Rensselaer and Mrs. Young served as the only two women on Governor Roosevelt's commission on farm relief. Her efforts had much to do with appropriation of $125,000 made by the legislature for a new building for the College of Home Economics at Ithaca.

Judge Clearwater Most Properties Addresses First Offered for Sale

County Becomes Owner of Many Unusual Properties Including a Brick Yard—Many Bids Made on Some Properties.

There were but few properties offered for sale at the tax sale Thursday evening which were not bid in for taxes. In a few instances there were no bids and the county was forced to take the property for the amount of the tax. In this way the county became the owner of many unusual properties and among them was a brick yard and several houses on the yard property. The yard, houses and 40 acres of land owned by the Thomas Lynch company was put under the hammer to satisfy taxes due in the amount of $2,494.05. Located in the town of Uptown there apparently was no one present who desired to enter the price-making business and the county took over the property for the unpaid taxes. Deputy County Treasurer McEntee stated that if anyone desired to engage in the business of price-making the county would be engaged to start them in business for the small sum of the unpaid taxes. There were no takers of the offer.

In some of the parcels there was particular interest, and many bids were made on some properties. In bidding in a property it was bid in first the full acreage for the amount of taxes due. Instead of raising the price of the property the amount of the property was reduced. In an instance where there was a property of 49 acres with $12.40 in taxes due the property was bid in for the taxes and then followed spirited bidding for 39 acres, 30 acres and down to ten acres. The purchaser received an equity in the property of 10 acres for the $12.40 of taxes due.

In Woodstock there was considerable interest. Evidently there are many people with artistic minds who are willing to spend a small sum to gratify that desire. Several properties in the town of Woodstock were struck off after spirited bidding. In a few instances whole studios of unfortunate artists were offered for sale and in those cases there was considerable interest.

One property in which two people were interested was bid down until the successful bidder had purchased but 1-150,000 of an acre for the tax. The property was located in the town of Denning and contained 80 acres.

High water mark for prices was secured in the town of Woodstock when the Benson Lapo lot at Shady containing two acres was struck off. Three bidders were interested and the property was bid down until two remained and it was finally struck off when one bidder purchased 1/2 of a square foot for the tax.

Many of the properties were struck off to lawyers who purchased for clients or for persons who had bought the property on a prior sale and held certificates. In the crowd of bidders were several professional "tax sales" buyers who buy property and speculate with it if it is not redeemed and who secure 10 per cent on their money in case the property is redeemed.

New Insurgents Hold Senate At Work on Tariff

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP).—Surprised by a new uprising in the Republican ranks, emanating principally from the newer members classified as "Hoover Regulars," the weary Senate was plunging ahead on the tariff bill today with its prospective week's recess before the regular session overwhelmingly denied.

Without warning this new Republican bloc came to the surface yesterday to strike out against the party leadership and to join that other Republican faction, the Western Independents, in voting against the seven-day recess unless the tariff bill is passed.

The new members made no speeches and expressed no opinions to the harassed Senate leadership which turned on them heatedly. But they passed the word that they intend to keep the Senate in constant session in an effort to get the tariff bill out of the way before December and circulated a round-robin pleading members to be present.

Stunned by this new show of independence, which has thrown their week of rest overboard, the Senate leaders turned the tables and demanded night sessions of three hours in addition to the regular eight-hour daily meetings, and the weary Senate was grumbling away today in a faint but desperate hope of getting the tariff bill out of the way.

Political observers were studying with interest today this new political phenomenon arising in an already politically historical Senate session which has seen a substantial group of Western Independents bolt the leadership of President Hoover and, joining forces with the Democrats, assume control.

The new Republican faction is counted among the strongest supporters of the President in the Senate. It apparently arose in protest at the proposal of a week's vacation from the long grind on the tariff.

Senators Vandenberg of Michigan, and Sackett of Kentucky, who are generally credited with organizing the revolt, insist they are not its leaders. They say privately that the group has only one purpose—the passage of the tariff bill before the regular session—and arose without leadership as an expression of concerted views.

It was Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, who retaliated by demanding the night sessions and he served warning in emphatic language that he would expect all those who opposed the adjournment to be constantly on hand.

Speaking back for the Republicans who left the party leadership on adjournment, Senator Robinson of Indiana, said they intended to stay on the job until the tariff task is completed. Senator Vandenberg immediately circulated a round-robin petition pleading members to attend all sessions and he had well over 20 Republican signers today.

Members of the party bolters insisted that no revolt was intended against the nominal Republican leadership in the Senate, including Senator Watson of Indiana, the leader, who is now away on doctor's orders for a rest, or against Senator Jones, the active leader.

BOARD OF HEALTH WILL BE GLAD TO COOPERATE

In reply to the letter of Mr. Benson of the 14th, I would state that first, all complaints about water and otherwise should be directed to the Board of Health, City Hall. Second, the city laboratory does not make the chemical analysis of water. This is done only at the state department at Albany and the chemist of the city water department, who is at Zena, N. Y. If Mr. Benson or any one else wishes an analysis of drinking water, they should inform the Board of Health of Kingston of that fact and we will be glad to cooperate with them in having it done.

Chief Wood Grateful.

Chief of Police J. Allen Wood stated that he desired to thank the Kingston fire department and the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation for their cooperation with the police department. The firemen and the employees of the electric company did wonderful work in recovering the automobile from the Rondout creek, and if it had not been for their assistance the length of time taken in recovering the body could have been extended several hours.

Body Identified Later.

As it was dark at the time the car plunged into the creek it was not known whose automobile had left the road or how many occupants were in the car. It was not until the body was finally brought to shore that identification was made.

Mrs. Pfeiffer, wife of the drowned man, was at the bedside of her son who is seriously ill at a hospital in Brooklyn. She was notified of the death of her husband by Coroner Conner.

Second Christian names arose when it was desired to give a child its father's name. That was when first names were limited to that of the saint on whose day, or near it, the child was born.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)

West Palm Beach—Mrs. Cora L. Ferguson has been receiving 3,999 pennies a week as alimony. She has cited her divorced husband to court to explain why he is not in contempt for his method of remitting. Exhibit A is 6,996 pennies.

Berkeley, Cal.—Helen Willis feels certain that the omission of her name from the social register will not affect her tennis. And she is not to hurry her marriage just because her fiancé, Frederick S. Moody, Jr., is among the elect.

London—The Prince of Wales has a private front door for the first time. Alterations at York House, his residence adjoining St. James Palace, have provided another entrance for his secretarial staff.

Albany, N. Y.—Maurice E. Campbell, federal prohibition administrator for New York city, is virtually ostracized from the homes of his many friends. He cannot visit them without embarrassing them and himself, he told the State Federation of Women's Clubs. Many distinguished hostesses, he added, feel socially obliged to serve bootleg liquor in their homes.

Princeton, N. J.—The Tiger has been kept hungry in the hope that he'll chew up the Bulldog. A student mass meeting at Princeton to stir up things prior to tomorrow's game with Yale was cancelled at the team's request. It has had a poor season and hopes to provide reason for a bonfire and other demonstrations by what it does in the Yale Bowl.

New York—Whatever happens to stocks there will be a Santa Claus. Christmas Clubs of the nation shortly will distribute $600,000,000 which members have saved up during the year. The average check will be $59.56. Payments will range as high as $1,499.

Iowa City—Bobbie Farr, 12, is mighty proud of his new seven-tube radio. He once shook hands with the President. Then he wrote Mr. Hoover that he had heard one of his speeches over a neighbor's set. The President replied that "a friend" was sending Bobbie a set of his own.

Magnesia Best for Your Indigestion

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestants, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or four tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomachs no longer trouble them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and make digestion easy. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

FADA RADIO

Year after year . . . since the beginning of broadcasting . . . FADA has produced the outstanding radio of the season. And each year FADA continues to be overwhelmingly chosen by radio experts as the set that gives the finest performance.

And now comes the newest FADAS! There's never been such range and richness of tone . . . such fidelity of reproduction . . . such hair line selectivity of stations far and near . . . at the lowest prices in FADA history. It's results that count with the experts . . . it's results that you get with a FADA installed in your home.

Wall Street More Optimistic Today

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—Wall Street was optimistic today because of the first reprieve in prices since they reached unseasoned depths.

Reduction of the Federal Reserve discount rate and another decline in brokers' loans were added to the budget of constructive financial news on which stock prices rebounded sharply from the year's lows.

Boosted up by announcement of a proposed Federal income tax cut, a 1,000,000 share order for Standard Oil of New Jersey and action of the stock exchange officials against bear operations, the market rallied yesterday, showing net gains of two to 20 points a share.

After the close of the three-hour trading session the Federal Reserve Bank of New York announced a reduction of its discount rate from five to four and one-half per cent. This was the second cut in two weeks and brought the rate to the lowest point since July 13, 1928.

The shrinkage in brokers' loans for the week, also announced after the close, was $710,000,000 making the total reduction since the peak of October 2, $2,632,000,000.

The sustained character of the rally in which sporadic bursts of selling were quickly absorbed was the basis for statements by operators that the market's recovery was the most emphatic since the beginning of the break three weeks ago. Prices closed at or near the day's high quotations.

There were three principal sources of buying, an accumulation of overnight orders from banking and institutional sources, a heavy covering by shorts who realized that the call for a statement of position from stock exchange officials was directed at them and a large volume of investment, semi-investment and speculative buying by the public who had been awaiting the upturn before buying in attractively priced issues.

Total sales for the day on the stock exchange were 5,569,360 shares. On the curb market, where prices showed a similar brisk recovery, sales were 2,287,500 shares. The stock exchange ticker ran two hours and 35 minutes late.

Standard Oil of New Jersey for which an order for 1,000,000 shares at $0 was placed Wednesday figured largely in the day's transactions. It opened at $5 and closed at $5 1/2, a net gain for the day of 7 1/2% on total sales of 109,100 shares. The million share order was presumed to have been placed for the Rockefeller interests.

Microphone Finds Break

When a water pipe in Germany breaks the fault is found without extensive digging, a new invention of German scientists locating the trouble through a microphone. A sensitive electrical detector, placed on the ground above the pipe line, locates the sound of running water at the break. This is heard through the microphone connected with the detector.

It has no more injurious effect on any part of an automobile cooling system than plain water alone.

This includes ALUMINUM, CAST IRON, COPPER, BRASS, PUMP PACKINGS and RUBBER.

950,000 cars made permanently FREEZE-PROOF with only one filling of RADIATOR GLYCERINE

One filling lasts all winter
You don't have to keep replacing G. P. A. Radiator Glycerine — its protection lasts all season. Used in 950,000 cars last year.

DON'T GUESS — Be sure your anti-freeze is permanent
Lots of people use anti-freeze and still have freeze-ups. That's because ordinary anti-freeze evaporates. Its protection steals away. G. P. A. Radiator Glycerine never users never worry about evaporation. One filling protects their cars for the entire winter because glycerine will not evaporate.

It won't evaporate!

Wouldn't you like to put just one filling of anti-freeze in your car and then stop thinking of freeze-ups for the entire winter?

That's exactly what 950,000 motorists did last year. It's exactly what you can do by putting G. P. A. Radiator Glycerine in your car right now.

Glycerine won't evaporate. One filling lasts all winter. You don't have to keep adding more — or guess about how much has evaporated.

Think of the worry and trouble this saves you. Park your car when and where you like all winter without a thought of freeze-up worries. You always know you're safe.

Glycerine is safe for your car. It won't harm the paint or attack the cooling system. Just follow the instructions on the can and it will give you the same dependable, permanent protection it has given to hundreds of thousands of other users. Get the entire winter's protection that it offers you by putting it in your car now. Get it from your garage or from any dealer displaying the G. P. A. sign.

Search For Gang of Killers

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—Police today intensified search for a gang of killers that leaves the bodies of victims in cars parked on busy thoroughfares in upper Manhattan.

The body of Mortimer Shubert, 31 years old, Harlem gangster and ex-convict, with six bullet wounds, an ear cut off and burns on it, was found yesterday at Broadway and LaSalle street.

Shubert was formerly a partner in a vending machine business with Joseph Barro, whose body was found in an automobile at Fifth avenue and 167th street last September 11. The next day the body of Thomas Akers, also identified with the vending machine business, was found in a car on East 161st street.

Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen said Shubert apparently had been a victim of the same kind of which the others were slain.

Shubert was one of the five gangsters arrested in connection with the kidnapping of Casper Holstein, wealthy negro real estate operator, last September. They were released.

His police record lists 15 arrests and several prison terms for larceny, burglary and robbery.

His body was found in a car belonging to his wife by a street cleaner after the automobile had stood parked under the elevated structure more than five hours. Police said he apparently had been killed 24 hours before.

Research and Education

In the last analysis humanity has but one supreme problem, the problem of kindling the torch of enlightened creative effort here and there and everywhere, and of passing on for the enrichment of the lives of future generations the truth already discovered.—In two words, the problem of research and education.—Dr. Robert A. Millikan.

FARM WOMEN STILL WORKING OVERTIME

Modern Machinery Hasn't Removed All Drudgery.

Washington.—Modern machinery has lightened the load of men in industry and the city housewife, but a survey by Miss Gertrude Kneeland of the Agricultural Department indicates that for farm housewives the old saw, "Man works from sun to sun, but woman's work is never done," has lost none of its verity.

Judged by the eight-hour standard day, with Sunday off now generally prevalent in industry, all the 700 farm housewives studied are overworked. On an average their records show 63 hours and 30 minutes of working time for the week. This compares with the 44-hour week in industry.

Not all of the time, Miss Kneeland pointed out, is spent in housework and care of children. Most farm women carry a double job, being a farmer as well as homemaker. In a few instances she adds a third paid job to the traditional two. This double or triple role accounts for the longer hours of work for farm housewives as compared with women in the city.

In Superior Group. Study of the 700 farm homes disclosed the women in them work an average of 52 hours and 17 minutes a week on home making alone, and an additional 11 hours and 13 minutes in care of poultry, gardening, and other farm tasks. While this was the average in these 700 farm homes, Miss Kneeland expressed the view if the facts were obtained for all the 6,000 farm homes in the country the average of working hours would be found much higher. Women included in the study represented a superior group of farm homes containing many modern conveniences.

Almost half the 52 hours in home making was spent in feeding the family, and most of this in preparation of meals and dishwashing. Cleaning and straightening the house was the next largest item, requiring 8 hours and 15 minutes weekly. The other items in care of the house—care of fires, lights, water supply, repairing, care of surroundings, added another 2 hours and 17 minutes. Five hours and 21 minutes went to laundering, 4 hours and 11 minutes to sewing, 1 hour and 45 minutes to mending, and 13 minutes to other care of clothing.

Care of Children. Care of children and other members of the family required another 2 hours and 26 minutes, while 1 hour and 47 minutes were spent in planning, purchasing, and other management, and 5 minutes in miscellaneous duties.

"Clearly this is a very different picture, indeed," Miss Kneeland said, "from the one which is usually painted concerning the modern home maker. According to the current version, we should expect to find her housekeeping tasks reduced to a mere hour or so a day, with the care of children and the management of the family income absorbing the major part of her limited working time. For the city home maker this may be somewhat true. But for the farm woman it bears little resemblance to the actual situation."

"It would be unjustified, however, to conclude that the farm home has been untouched by the industrial revolution. For, though the working hours of the farm woman are still long, they were undoubtedly even longer 50 years ago. And much more help was given the home maker then than now by other members of the household. One-fifth of these housewives studied did all their work themselves, and on the average they received only one hour a day of help."

Town of Nellie's Apron

—Name Is Changed

Conway, Ark.—The town of Nellie's Apron henceforth will be called Napron.

Railroad men are responsible for the change to what they consider a more dignified name.

Napron cannot be found easily on the map, but nevertheless, it lies midway between Cotter and Yellville, on the White River division of the Missouri Pacific railroad.

The legendary origin of the name is that a girl named Nellie was drowned in the White river and the only trace of her ever found was her apron on the river bank near the site of the present town.

Headlights Aid Night

Landings in Belgium

Brussels.—Successful experiments conducted with headlights on airplanes to facilitate night landings have been made in Sabene, the Belgian air line, at the Maron airport in Brussels. A plane was equipped with a light which, reflected by a parabolic Phillips reflector, was projected 3,000 feet when the plane flew at an altitude of 900 feet. The success of the tests has prompted the Belgian government to provide all planes with such beacon facilities.

New Fireproof Wood

One of the most important uses to which straw has been put is that of making a new kind of wood called solomite. The straw is compressed, under a pressure of 250 pounds to the square inch, in a machine which interlaces it with wire. The machine can turn out four thousand square feet of board a day, and a remarkable feature of the wood is that it is fireproof.

Faculty Guests of Hi-Y Club

The Kingston Hi-Y Club held a fine meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening when they had as their guests the members of the Kingston High School faculty who numbered about 25.

The large dining hall of the Y. M. C. A. was very appropriately decorated in harvest colors of purple and gold. Chrysanthemums adorned the tables and shaded lights cast a glow over the entire setting making it one to be remembered. Members escorted their faculty friends into the hall and then joined in the singing of "America."

After Joseph Ross led the invocation, Paul Zerna, Kingston's popular song leader, assisted at the piano by Donald Bitterer led in the singing of several of the popular songs. Music for the banquet was furnished by Miss Mildred Hines and Howard Thomas and Bart Linton. The banquet itself was very efficiently served by the Hi-Y auxiliary. It had been prepared by several members of the Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary.

Frank Thompson, Jr., welcomed the faculty and expressed a hope that they would enjoy the banquet and entertainment which had been made ready for them.

Mr. Van Ingen, principal of the High School, responded on behalf of the faculty thanking the members for their kindness in preparing an event of this type.

Alton Blackwell led devotions. At this time the Rev. Dr. Leach spoke on the observance of the Y. M. C. A. National Week of prayer which is being celebrated this week. Dr. Leach Davidson, the main speaker of the evening, was introduced by J. C. Fraser, who had been instrumental in securing Dr. Davidson to speak at the meeting. Dr. Davidson spoke on "Sportmanship." The ladies of the kitchen were given a rising vote of thanks.

Zaven Melik, one of Kingston's favorite vocalists rendered several vocal solos in the Russian language. Mr. Melik was accompanied by Mr. Mahanelder.

The meeting closed with the singing of the K. H. S. "Amen Mater."

Uster Park and Union Center—Beginning Sunday, November 17, there will be preaching services every Sunday as follows: Uster Park at 10:30 a. m., Union Center at 10:30 a. m., Sunday school services as heretofore, at 9:30 and 10:30 a. m., respectively. Ralph H. Beaumont is to conduct the services. It is earnestly desired that all of the Esopus Reformed Church community will avail themselves of these opportunities of worship and service.

Hurley and North Marlborough—Preaching next Sunday by the Rev. John B. Steketee at 10:30 a. m., and 2:30 p. m., respectively. The Sunday school services will be on the topic of "Living With People of Other Races."

Katsbaun—The Rev. John R. Howard was received into the Classis of Uster at a special session of that body Tuesday evening, and installed as pastor of that historic church the same evening. The Rev. Edwin D. Miner of New Paltz presided and read the forms; Dr. Lucas Boeve, of the First Church of Kingston, preached the sermon on "Men and the Kingdom" (Luke 12:35); the Rev. Harvey L. Todd, Woodstock, a seminary classmate of Mr. Howard, gave the charge to the new minister; and the Rev. Victor W. Simons, of Gardiner, addressed the church. The Rev. Mr. Howard pronounced the benediction. There was a reception in the church hall afterwards. The Rev. Howard comes to Uster Classis from the Classis of Palsadesa from the church of Secaucus, N. J.

ST. REMY.
St. Remy, Nov. 14.—The annual fair and chicken supper of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Reformed Church was held in the church on Wednesday evening and was a success in every respect. The president of the Ladies' Aid wishes to thank all the ladies who helped, with the supper and all others who helped to make the fair and supper the success it was.

Mr. and Mrs. George Dunn of New York city, who have been spending some time at their home in this village, expect to return to the city today.

There will be a salad supper held in the basement of the church on Friday evening, after which an entertainment will be given in the church.

The consistory of the church have just had the basement renovated; making a kitchen complete in all details, which is entirely separate from the dining room.

Many Fathers at No. 6 P.-T. Meeting

The November meeting of School No. 6 Parent-Teacher Association was held in the evening, last Tuesday, giving the fathers of pupils a chance to attend the session and there was a very satisfactory number of them present to hear an interesting program, the feature of which was a talk by Clarence Schoenmaker, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A.

The Children's Leisure Time and How They Use It" was Mr. Schoenmaker's topic. He treated it in an interesting manner and gave some very helpful and practical suggestions. The humorous stories that interspersed facts given by the speaker kept his audience in a jolly mood throughout his instructive talk.

Mrs. Emerick, president of No. 6 P.-T. A., was chairman of the meeting. She welcomed the parents and teachers present and opened the program by having all sing one verse of "America". A short business session followed, during which reports were made. They included results of the food sale recently held under the chairmanship of Mrs. Edward Kelley and were very gratifying.

It was decided to hold a rummage sale at the store of F. Ditch on Broadway some time next week, the date to be announced later.

All were members of the president's luncheon to be held on Saturday, November 16, at 10:30 a. m. at the high school. Luncheon reservations must be sent to Mrs. R. H. D. Boerker, P. O. Box 345, as early as possible. The event promises to be a very inspiring one.

On November 26 the graduating class will give a play and Mr. Miner asked for the association's financial support and aid in making costumes.

The school orchestra, under the direction of Leonard Stine, public school music director, played two very pleasing selections. Then the boys' Glee Club sang two numbers.

Miss Eva Clinton, a former pupil of No. 6, played a violin solo with great skill. Mr. Stine accompanied her. The next number was a group of solos by Anthony Van Gonsic. They were very pleasing.

The refreshment committee, under the direction of Mrs. A. J. Swanson, then took charge of the meeting. Everyone went home with the satisfaction of having spent a very enjoyable and profitable evening.

Early Diving Suit

The diving suit is not so new as one might think. A patent was granted to John Stapleton on March 17, 1863, for "a new engine so by him contrived as to permit a person inclosed in it to walk under water, and to a new invented way to force air into any depth of water to supply the person in the said engine therewith and for continuing a lamp burning under water; also a way to deaerate and purify the air so as to make the same serviceable for respiration."

Mrs. Catherine Niebergall of Kingston spent one day of the past week with her daughter, Mrs. Neal Hestling. In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Constant came and spent the evening.

Troubles Of Stomach And Kidneys Relieved By Dr. French's Nu-Erb

Rosendale Man Suffered Three Years—Declares It Was Only Medicine To Help Him.

The great herbal remedy, Dr. French's Nu-Erb, is growing daily in demand because of its certain action on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Its pure herbal juices tone and regulate these vital organs and drive poisonous waste matter from the system, which is so often the cause of rheumatism and neuritis. As a blood purifier there seems to be nothing to equal this splendid herbal medicine and being made from nature's own herbs, roots and barks, it is perfectly safe for anyone to take.

"Nu-Erb has overcome health troubles from which I have suffered for the past three years," said Mr. Burt C. Bailey, Rosendale, N. Y. (near Kingston). "Before taking this medicine I suffered continually from stomach, kidney and liver troubles. Gas formed in my stomach after every meal, causing hours of distress and pain. My kidneys acted frequently both during the day and at night. I was subject to sick, bilious attacks, severe headaches and my nerves were in a weakened rundown condition. As a result I slept poorly and I had no appetite.

"All that has changed since I have used the Nu-Erb. I can eat anything now and never have any trouble with my stomach. My kidneys are apparently in a normal condition and Nu-Erb has also put an end to the biliousness, sick headaches and strengthened my nerves so that I sleep soundly the whole night through and feel refreshed and full of energy when I awaken in the morning. I heartily recommend this Nu-Erb to anyone suffering as I did."

McBride Drug Store, 312 Wall Street, is headquarters for Dr. French's Nu-Erb in Kingston. Go see the Nu-Erb man, now making his headquarters there and let him explain to you the merits of this remarkable medicine.

Kingston High In Annual "Big Game" On Saturday

Great traditional rivalry has been developed between Kingston and Poughkeepsie in the past years and they will meet Saturday at the Bridge. Only one of the most popular high school games in the Hudson Valley. Although the Blue and White have withdrawn from the Hudson League, the natural rivalry which exists between the two schools brings them together in their annual "Big Game" which a large number of spectators usually witness.

Records reveal the fact that the Maroon and White has not beaten Poughkeepsie since 1925. That year, however, the Blue and White took a sound beating for the score was Kingston, 22, Poughkeepsie, 6. It was then that Wilbur Tetter, now a college star and one of the best full backs in the east today, was playing the same position for Kingston.

For three years Poughkeepsie has been waging successful campaigns against the local school but this fall Coach Kline has developed a mighty eleven that should come through. Their defense is not strong and for the offense work, it can be stopped to stop and Kingston possesses both of these good qualities.

Eastern Football Games Saturday

New York, Nov. 15 (AP)—With the season's end at hand tomorrow, many of the smaller eastern colleges and for instruction among the larger teams, climactic games all through the Atlantic seaboard sector will be fought with the day peculiar to such engagements. In many instances, the success or failure of the entire season will hinge upon the result.

Princeton men could forget defeats by Brown, Cornell and Chicago, in the Orange and Blue series, but the game with Yale, at New Haven, and the game with Harvard, at Cambridge, Mass., are the two which will determine the outcome of the season. Such a result is considered important, but the fact that Princeton has a different animal from the one which attacks earlier opponents.

Harvard sent the Tigers through a defensive drill against the scrums at Princeton yesterday as Yale pushed its attack. New Haven advised that Booth would start, but some believed he would be held for a climax.

Pennsylvania had a long dummy scrimmage and prepared to move into New York for a "smoking-up" drill today in preparation for its game against Columbia. The nineteenth in a series dating back to 1875 and the Elks' Field at Hookey, Columbia had a brief scrimmage in the rain.

Williams had outshone Amherst somewhat on the season, but the Lord Jeffs would consider victory over the Purple tomorrow ample recompense for earlier reverses. Williams, however, is the favorite.

Syracuse crushed up its defense for the invasion of Archibald Stadium by the sturdy Colgate eleven tomorrow. The Maroon had a long scrimmage at Hamilton.

Cornell had a light workout at Ithaca before enroute with 33 line troops, for the invasion of Harvard, N. H., where Dartmouth stands as a menace to the big Red team's record of six victories. Dartmouth busied itself with a forward pass attack as the Ithacans took up the march. Even without Masters, the Green is something of a favorite.

With Jim Douglas back in action, Arnold Horween will be able to start his regular Harvard eleven against Holy Cross, and the best that Harvard has doubtless will be required if the Crimson is to break last year's scoreless deadlock with the purple. Holy Cross finished its work for the game with a long drill yesterday.

Brown, the Army and the Navy had light work in preparation for their respective games against Northwich, Dickinson and Wake Forest. Fordham brushed up a bit for Thiel, which is to be met at the Polo Grounds.

Pittsburgh and Carnegie Tech are on edge, hard work finished, for their game against each other at the Panther stadium. Pittsburgh, undefeated and untied, is favored, but upsets have been known to occur in games where the rivalry is as keen as it is in this meeting.

West Virginia prays for an upset to add the mountaineer eleven against Lou Little's strong Georgetown outfit, which has yielded just one touchdown this year. Penn State is prepared to meet a vigorous invasion by Bucknell.

NEW GRID RULE BOOK IS LAUDED

Technical Data of Old Reduced and Simplified.

One of the biggest steps toward better understanding of the game of football that has been taken in a long time is the complete reconstruction of the football rules book. As far as the general public is concerned, the present rule book might as well as not exist, writes H. J. Stegman, director of athletics, University of Georgia, in the Atlanta Constitution. There is no information in it that a layman can read and understand. It is a technical, complicated and confusing compilation of rules that will shed no light except for anyone well versed in the background of the rules. The average public has to get its information from newspaper accounts that have abbreviated the yearly changes late readable news.

A new draft of the football rules is in the making at present and the first copy will be ready for final inspection of the modification committee of the present rules committee this winter. The final corrected copy will be ready for use next fall.

A famous coach once said: "Football would be a great game if we could do away with the helmet." Football must be a great game to survive the helmet.

But the helmet attitude rears with the helmet; you do not find it among football players or coaches.

We have always found the men directly concerned with winning football games both fair and modest. We have never met a football player half as boastful as the average alumnus. They suffer for the sins of these elders. So does the school.

Utopia, in the minds of most coaches and players, is a land where football can be played without an helmet following.

Colgate has one backfield made up entirely of veterans. They are Yablock, Hart, Doyle and Macaluso.

The latest of the brawny acts of the gridiron to try his skill successfully in another sport is Howard "Red" Bush, nineteen-year-old middleweight, who is making something of a name for himself in New York's fight clubs.

There is at least one point in Robby Jones' putting stroke worth noting. There are other points, but they are harder to follow. The point under discussion involves the position of his hands and the working of his wrists on all putts from two to fifteen feet. You will notice that his hands are held in close against his body. You will also notice that at the finish of the putter's back swing his hands have barely moved, less than a fraction of an inch, as the bend or break of the wrists takes the putter back. This makes it much simpler to keep the right line and to stroke with the blade of the club.

While every American school, club, college and university employs an expert coach, Great Britain has not one single paid expert with the comprehensive knowledge required to coach athletes in all the athletic events.

University of North Carolina has six veterans for the backfield. Bill Cerner, a Notre Dame man, is backfield coach.

These football coaches know their stuff—there's no getting around that. Glenn Thistlethwaite said late this summer that Northwestern would be one of the best teams in the conference this year, and another Big Ten coach said that Purdue would take Michigan by three touchdowns, although it didn't sound reasonable at that time.

Thistlethwaite was alert to the threat of the Purple, but apparently he was unable to wake up his players, who seemed to have been "softened up" from hearing too many nice things said about them.

Tom Turner, president of the Portland baseball club, announces that Larry Woodall, catcher for the Ducks, will succeed Bill Rodgers, who recently resigned as manager of the team. Woodall will be in charge next year.

Washington State college football team will cover 13,633 miles playing its 12-game schedule, it being the longest and most difficult schedule in the thirty-five years the institution has been represented on the gridiron. The longest trip will be a 6,573-mile journey across the Pacific to Hawaii. The Cougars meet the Honolulu A. C. on Christmas day and wind up the schedule playing the University of Hawaii on New Year's day.

John Merrick Kelly is almost as much a veteran on the midway as Coach A. A. Stagg. The Chicago captain this season started his football career by climbing over the fence so often that he was given a job chasing balls to be rid of the nuisance of putting him out.

Then he became mascot and was such a favorite of Pat Page that he just naturally inherited that nickname.

He began starring with the St. Ignace team and then entered the university. All in all, he has been around the Maroon team for fourteen years and knows Stagg's "tricks" very well.

Sport Slants

By Alan J. Gould, (Associated Press Staff Writer)

All that the Iowa Hawkeyes have to worry about after meeting Minnesota's charge is a little gridiron party with the Purdue Boilermakers, last battling their way toward the Big Ten top for the first time.

If the Hawkeyes emerge in good health and spirits from these two successive battles they ought to be restored to good standing in the Western Conference on general principles.

The uproar over the world's series kept a lot of experts from realizing for some time that Purdue had a football team worth writing home about. While the big baseball battle was occupying the main attention the Boilermakers were handing a pair of pastings to Kansas Aggies and Michigan with a great deal of flourish. They have pounded through all opposition since then to justify the early assertion of that journeyman observer, Steve Hannegan:

"Keep your eye on Purdue after the world's series. There is a football team, a great line with a stock of hard hitting backs. If you think I am just an enthusiastic boy from Indiana, watch what they do to some of the rest of the Big Ten."

What Purdue has done to Michigan, Chicago and Wisconsin so far makes Mr. Hannegan a prophet with considerable honor in his own country.

Collectively there is no better backfield in the Western Conference than the ball-lugging group led by Welch, Harneson and Yunerich. Unless Iowa can check the rampaging Boilermakers on November 16 or Indiana pull the unexpected on November 23, Purdue will ride through all the way at the top.

All Notre Dame has to do, following its tussle with Drake, is take on Southern California, Northwestern and the Army on successive Saturdays.

The defeat of the Southern Californians by California takes away some of the significance of their game with the men of Rockne, but it doesn't make the Trojans any part of a set-up. Nor has Northwestern's show of strength served to offer any change of a let-up for the Ramblers before they meet the charge of Red Cagle and his Army mates at the Yankee Stadium. West Point, with Cagle making his farewell appearance on an Eastern gridiron, will train every gun it has on the Hoosiers. The Cadets haven't forgotten how they were upset last season by an under-rated Notre Dame eleven.

On the other hand, there will be no doubt about Rockne's claim to national championship honors, or a good share of them, if his charges romp through this schedule without a setback.

Pittsburgh, another national championship contender, follows Washington & Jefferson with Carnegie and Penn State, neither of which is a set-up in any respect. The Panthers play no hand-picked schedule, nor do they have to wander very far to find opposition in a sector that is crowded with first-class teams. The rugged mining and mill towns around Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia develop gridiron talent of the "hard-bitten" variety. It emerges from the Pitt mould of Dr. Jock Sutherland as the finished product, so far about as finished and workmanlike a football product as any gridiron can show.

Main Armory Bout Will Be Mareno vs. Fitz Jones

Prospects of a match between Billy McMahon or Harry (Kid) Brown and Nick Zinna for the feature attraction at the armory next Friday were blasted Thursday night when Matchmaker Jimmy Ambrose phoned from his New York office to inform Captain E. C. Lawson, director of the local bouts, that Brown is conducting a hectic campaign in Florida and McMahon could not be hooked owing to a previous New York match.

The news was everything but acceptable to Lawson. He knows that local fans want to see Zinna in action against either Brown or McMahon, but the situation was tied up so nothing could be done about the much desired match. Lawson informed Ambrose that if he could not bring McMahon or Brown to Kingston, he need not bring anyone for Zinna. So Nick will not work on the next card and likely will be held in reserve until one of the desirable opponents is ready to meet him.

The main bout at the armory on Friday, November 22, will be an eight rounder between Joe Mareno, a boy known to local fans, and Sailor Fitz Jones of the U. S. Navy. "Jonsey" is a clever man according to Ambrose. He holds wins over "Spider" Kelly and Georgie Sidders, who was a popular boy here last winter. The Sailor is a tough customer who will give "Fighting" Joe Mareno one of the hardest fights he ever had, it is said.

Pete (Kid) Buckman of this city, who has a knockout record that goes back as far as his last 12 or 13 fights, is to meet Charlie Hanford of New York in the semi-final. This also will be an eight round affair, provided Buckman does not get over his inactivity in the early rounds as is his custom. Hanford is out after a win over Buckman and claims that he will hand Pete a setback right from his home-town rounds.

Johnny Hayes of Danbury, Conn., who boxed his way to two times over Roy Bailey of West Point is a local armory, is set for a six rounder with Rocky MacFadden, a local Italian boy of Fort Hamilton. According to Ambrose, MacFadden is twice as tough as Asher and will punch with the best of 'em.

Charlie Molvin of this city, Frankie Gallagher of New York, be opponents in another six rounder, while Jerry Troughton, another local boy will open the show with Soldier McMahon of Philadelphia in a four rounder.

Spinny's Radio Five Drubs Fleischmanns, 66-20

The Spinny Radio Five of Port Ewen opened up its basketball season Thursday at the Knights of Pythias Hall in that village with an overwhelming victory over Fleischmanns, 66 to 20. Spinny's team took the lead at the opening whistle and held it throughout the contest. Port Ewen's offense and defense work was of the best while Fleischmanns' team work showed lack of unity.

A large number of spectators witnessed the court battle which was fast and hard fought from beginning to end. Port Ewen found no trouble in working their way through the mountain team's defense and find the hoop for scores time and time again. The visitors found great difficulty in working the ball into the basket for their passes were intercepted by Spinny's alert guards.

Coach Johnny Johnson of the Port Ewen aggregation handles his men in such a way that a heavy scoring and a good defensive team is on the floor at all times. With the wealth of material that Coach Johnson has at his command his team ought to go through a successful season.

As Joyce, Hyatt and Van Etten were to Port Ewen so was Kirk to Fleischmanns. This boy didn't roll up his usual number of points but his individual work throughout the game was outstanding at all times. He blocked more passes and dribbled the ball in such a superior fashion that he was a bright light in Fleischmanns' steady but unsuccessful attack. Kirk just had an off night for his shots would hit the rim, roll around and drop off, which proved his keen eye was slightly off.

Dan Joyce gave his usual performance of dropping shots in from all angles of the court. Dan has his shooting eye with him and he used it in a way that has always distinguished his playing. Dan gathered 19 points which is comparatively small to his usual number.

Van Etten High Scorer.

Van Etten capped all scoring honors, making 10 field goals and two free throws for a total of 22 points. This forward with his left hand is dangerous regardless of the position he may be in when he tosses the ball. He is a steady point getter. In Hyatt Port Ewen has one of the best centers in this section. He is not alone efficient when it comes to the tap but he is also one of the Port's leading scorers. Hyatt is always under the basket to back up his teammates' shots and his floor work by no means can be overlooked.

Guards' Good Work.

In the eyes of the fans the guards never do much but Short, Terwilliger and Smith made things pretty tough for Fleischmanns when it came to getting by them to take a shot at the basket. These men are also there on the pass work.

At the sound of the opening whistle it appeared as though both teams were somewhat evenly matched, but the Fleischmanns players soon marred their playing by committing fouls. The Port Ewen boys made their shots from the fifteen foot line which put them in the lead. Port Ewen scored rapidly while their opponents were fighting hard for their three points which they got in the first quarter. When the opening period ended Spinny's Five was far in the lead, 16 to 3.

The second quarter saw the Port Eweners continue to tally heavily and the game developed into a more one-sided affair. Fleischmanns only added four more points to their score in this session. Joyce and Hyatt were the outstanding point getters in this period, bringing the count up to 26 to 7 as the half ended.

When the third quarter came around Fleischmanns showed no signs of staging a rally. They didn't improve in any way. Their pass work was ragged, shots inaccurate and so they failed to make the game interesting. Port Ewen just went on scoring as steadily as ever, having 50 points to Fleischmanns' 9 as the third quarter came to an end.

The last stanza was the mountain team's best scoring period of the game. They raised their tally from 9 to 20. However, Port Ewen's lead was so great that it didn't change the situation much. Herman, Winnie and Terray were the point collectors which had been held so successfully in the first three quarters. Van Etten still sunk an occasional shot which was the biggest part of the 16 points added to Port's score in the last session. The game ended with Spinny's Five far in front, 66 to 20.

Next Week's Game

Next Thursday night at the Knights of Pythias Hall the Spinny Radio Five will meet the Cohoes Central. The upstate team is classed as one of the best in this section of the state and a tough struggle is sure to take place between these two squads.

S. S. League to Meet Monday

A Senior Sunday School Basketball League meeting will be held at the Y. M. C. A. Monday at 7 p. m. It is important that every church which intends to enter a team be represented at the session. No teams will be accepted into the circuit after Monday.

The Sunday School Basketball League schedule will be drawn up immediately after the meeting. This is another important reason for representatives of teams to be present. It takes considerable time and effort to make a schedule and for this reason all matters likely to affect it will be considered before it is written.

It is expected that there will be great competition in the Sunday School League this year. Strong teams have signified intentions of getting into the circuit, which promises that fans will see a brand of ball equal to that played in past seasons.

CONGREGATIONALS DEFEAT COLONIAL-RED SHIELDS

"Hank" Krum's Pockhockie Congregationalists were in good shooting form Thursday night and took the Colonial-Red Shield combination over at Salvation Army Hall in a fast game that ended 39-30. Peppy floor work and accurate shots gave the Congregationalists an early lead on the contest in which they led their opponents all the way. The half-time score was Congregationalists, 20; Colonial-Red Shields, 15. Krum starred for his team, collecting 15 points. The Gilday brothers, Andy and Ed, each contributed 10 to the Colonial-Red Shield score.

Having won their first game of the season the Congregationalists are set for the remainder of the winter during which they hope to meet some strong opposition. They challenge any team in this vicinity. Games may be arranged by communicating with manager "Hank" Krum, 215 Delaware Avenue.

Instrument of Torture Used in "Good Old Days"

At the London tower there is still kept the "cravat" or engine for larking the hands, head and feet together, and nicknamed the "Kavenger's Daughter." This was made in two parts, with a broad loop of iron fastened by a hinge. The prisoner had to have on the pavement and contract his body into the smallest possible space. Then the executioner thrust on his shoulders, introduced the loop under the victim's legs, and compressed the victim closely until he was able to squeeze the ends of the iron loop over the small of the back. The time for this torture was one and a half hours, during which period the pressure of the infernal device made the blood gush from the nose, or even it was said, from the victim's hands and feet.—Devroit News.

Look for Prompt Action on Tax Cut

Washington, Nov. 15 (P.)—Prompt congressional approval of the treasury's new scheme of tax reduction is expected today by an almost unanimous agreement among party leaders that the nation's tax payers should benefit as quickly as possible from the prosperous financial condition of the government.

Factional spokesmen of both houses, save only those of the western independent Republicans, were in virtual accord in sanctioning Secretary Mellon's plan of lopping a full three per cent from all normal schedules of income taxation.

Administration supporters were quick to speak their approbation and were joined by the Democratic leaders of the house. Senate Democrats agreed, too, but held out the possibility of demanding an even greater reduction than that advanced by the treasury, conditioning their full approval on more definite information as to prospective federal needs and revenues than is now available.

The western independents were non-committal, although it was indicated that they would raise no serious objection. Their position has been that the treasury surplus should be applied to a reduction of the national debt, on the theory that its results in decreased federal disbursements for interest and indirect permits lowered taxes.

But while there was virtual union upon the Mellon proposal, the administration treasury suggestion, that legislation be enacted to permit the administration to alter tax rates under a plan similar to the flexible provisions of the present tariff law, called by far to evoke the same degree of unqualified commendation.

Dining Around the World

The National Geographic Society

A Feast in Ethiopia

THE epicure who is willing to blaze startlingly new trails now and then, can have a wonderful time on a gastronomic trip around the world.

Dining in the homes of England and Western Europe, the American attending a feast would find the chief dish a reminder of home. Turkey, duck or goose makes the most popular roast in England, while plum pudding—this time with a generously flavored brandy sauce—usually tops the meal during cool seasons.

In France and Spain our American explorer of the world's tables would again encounter the turkey but there he would find the capon and the pheasant sharing its popularity. Methods of preparation and side dishes, however, would tell him unmistakably that he was getting farther afield. Truffles, chestnuts and olives are important ingredients of the dressing of fowls in these Latin countries. In France snails might be numbered among the viands that supplement the piece de resistance; and in Spain the meal, starting, say, with almond soup, would be sure to include among the secondary dishes a sopa, rice cooked in olive oil, with tomatoes and other vegetables and perhaps bits of meat.

In northern Africa, whatever the date of the feast, it would be sure to have as its central dish cous-cous. This consists of wheat prepared like the grains of rice, steamed with lamb or mutton, and vegetables if the latter are obtainable. It is served in a large, almost hemispherical, basket, dish, so closely woven that it holds water. About this container the diners sit, taking their food with their fingers. Olives, dates, and figs help to complete the meal; and on occasion there may be a dish of locusts—"grasshoppers"—prepared with wheat. The legs, wings and heads are removed before the creatures are cooked.

Among the Zulus of southern Africa whole oxen or bullocks are roasted at feast time; and in central Africa the feast of feasts is roasted elephant's foot.

In Persia, as throughout all the Near and Central East, mutton holds first place. There the accepted epicurean trick is to cook the meat in pomegranate juice. Rice is cooked in grease, and the two combined form the famous pilau. With the pilau is served the thin, crisp, paperlike bread of Persia.

Raw Meat in Tibet. If one's culinary investigations extend to backward Tibet he finds a strange combination of a barbarism which shows itself in the eating of raw meat—the "higher" and "gamier" the better—and an ingenuity that has evolved concentrated emergency rations. A Tibetan feast might consist of yak meat, strong tea mixed with rancid butter, and parched barley meal moistened with the greasy tea. Evaporated and dried yak's milk soaked in tea would constitute the Tibetan "dessert course."

In India so important a repast would be complete without quantities of rice and curry. It is in Java, however, that rice is raised to its highest status as a food. If he who goes exploring among the foods of the world is a connoisseur he may well pause in Java, devoting days and weeks to exploring the variations—the nuances, one might almost say—of that Dutch-Javanese food masterpiece, the rijst-tafel (rice table).

Rice is boiled to silky whiteness and spread evenly on platters, each of which is to serve as an individual dish. But this rice, good as it is in itself, and later because of its becoming a vehicle for the various sauces, is as yet only the foundation of the dish, the "table" as the Dutch have it. On it are placed little heaps of choice tid-bits limited in variety only by the genius and imagination of the chef and his master's pocket book.

Feasting is something of an institution among well-to-do Koreans. Once or twice a year the wealthy rice landowners go to Seoul, the capital, and invite small armies of friends and acquaintances to dine with them that their prestige may be heightened in the eyes of their world. Half a dozen or more meals may be served at such a feast—beef, mutton, venison, fowl, fish and oysters. Rice, of course, holds an important place on the menu. Seaweed, cooked in oil and served with slices of red pepper; and kimchee, a kind of sauerkraut, are favorite side dishes. The guests eat their portions from little individual tables.

How They Eat in Japan

In Japan, too, guests at feasts eat from low, small, separate tables, their dishes being served usually in the kitchen. An exceptional feast is likely to be marked by the appearance of the piece de resistance—usually fish—whole before the guests. A favorite food for this sort of treatment is a big baked red snapper. It is placed on a table of its own in the center of a circle of the guest table, and portions are served from it by a servant.

The little tables at a Japanese feast are packed with a varied array of individual dishes. The guest probably will find clear chicken soup, the inevitable covered dish of rice, a slab of raw fish, roast bird, shrimp fritters, fruit, and various pickled greens. He may find, too, the most characteristic of all Japanese edibles, pickled chrysanthemum petals. For dessert he will have rice cakes and sweetened bean paste, a stiff, jelly-like substance, not unlike Turkish paste.

At Japanese inns the traveler is told that "Bombay duck" can be had at a reasonable price. The hungry customer visions a fat fowl but the waiter brings in pieces of smoked fish about two inches long and as thick as a dime. The menu also includes pickled seaweed, seaweed jelly, and chutney which resembles pickled citron, but is almost as hot as Mexican chile. More raw than cooked fish is eaten by Japanese. Raw baby octopuses are particularly popular. "Japanese Limburger" is not a cheese but a Japanese pickled daikon, or long, white radish.

Traveling still farther eastward on his circumnavigation of the food world, our explorer would still have to pass through the Pacific islands before completing his journey. Tahiti may be taken as typical of this region. There preparation for a feast means killing the fatted pig. The animal is usually roasted whole with yams and native plantains. Coconut sauce and coconut milk complete the feast, which is served on a huge banana leaf spread on the floor. The guests squat about this green "board" eating with their fingers.

Mexico Relies on Corn

When Mexico is reached, the traveler finds that corn or maize is the staff of life. But to the American used to his substantial and sizable loaf it is likely to appear a somewhat frail prop. Most of the Mexican corn is not milled into meal or flour. It is laboriously crushed with small stone rollers by hand, in millions of kitchens and dooryards. The crushed grain is then moistened into a stiff paste and cooked on a griddle into what the average visitor from north of the Rio Grande would term a "tough, flabby pancake." These are tortillas, the most generally used articles of food in Mexico. They are cooked in the home, in restaurants, over braziers in the market place, or taken cold by laborers in their lunch packets. Nor are they unknown on the tables of the prosperous. Wherever food appears in Mexico the tortilla stands well to the fore.

Not only does the tortilla look unappetizing to the outsider; it is sure to prove unappetizing if he follows his first impulse and treats it like a pancake, for it is tough and rather tasteless. But, treated as bread, the tortilla will make a much better impression. The proper trick is to roll it tightly so that it will be manageable and retain its heat. It then becomes a breadstick whose spiraled end will melt a bit of butter and furnish a really delectable bite.

Corn contributes to another important Mexican dish, the tamales. The raw corn paste is flattened out as though tortillas were to be made. On the paste is spread a thin layer of minced meat and pepper pods. The two layers are then folded up so that the meat and pepper forms an inner core with a sort of capsule of corn paste about it. Each piece is then wrapped in a corn stalk made pliable by soaking in water. Numbers of these are placed in a tin vessel and cooked by steam, then served piping hot both with the red, pepper,

STUDIES VOLCANOES' THROATS FROM AIR

Scientist Uses Planes to Make Observations.

Washington.—The use of airplanes to permit a scientific observer to look down the "throats" of active volcanoes is one of the latest developments of aviation.

On the island of Hawaii, where the eruptions are feared, three Navy airplanes have been used for volcano inspection trips. Around the same place was the veteran volcano observer, Dr. Thomas A. Jaggar.

No member of President Hoover's more careful attention than that given by Dr. Jaggar to the volcanoes of the Hawaiian Islands. While his fame rests largely on his practice in these American possessions, Dr. Jaggar is subject to call as consultant in the Aleutian Islands, Japan and other volcanic centers.

His house on the tip of Kilauea gives the scientist the right to be considered a "bedside volcano observer" in practically constant attendance on his most chronic case. His instruments, especially his seismograph, have their fingers on the pulse of the volcanoes at all times.

As some eruptions have arisen to fever heat earthquakes become stronger and more frequent. The numerous earthquakes that have shaken Hawaii recently aroused fears of impending eruption.

During the summer of 1923 Doctor Jaggar led a National Geographic society expedition to the little-known Mount Pavlov volcano area in the Aleutian Islands, one of the most active volcanic regions in the world today.

On the expedition to the Pavlov area Doctor Jaggar found evidence of a four-and-a-half-year cycle of activity among the Aleutian cones.

"There are no more earthquakes or eruptions than there have been in the past," declared Doctor Jaggar, in a report to the National Geographic society. "But more and more people are living in congested areas where disturbances inflict disasters now, whereas they would have passed unnoticed not so many years ago."

Hence the need for skilled observers to keep tabs on dangerous volcanoes.

How one eruption prediction saved thousands of lives and much property, was reported by Doctor Jaggar, in a communication to the National Geographic society, on the eruption of Sakurajima, Japan's greatest volcanic convulsion within historic times. The Hawaiian specialist was an eye-witness of the last phases of this eruption.

Although 20,000 people were living on the tiny island center of destruction a few days before the disaster, the volcano killed no one.

"The remarkable record of life-saving in the Sakurajima eruption," wrote Doctor Jaggar, "was partly due to good luck, but also to the instinct of the people, to the wisdom of the government, and to scientific societies."

Hope to Learn More.
To determine whether earthquakes, more common in the United States than volcanoes (Lassen, in California, the only active cone), have a close relation to volcanoes, has been one object of Doctor Jaggar's study.

"It is only a question of time," Doctor Jaggar continued, "and of additional observations at several volcanoes, for science to learn more about earthquake portents than any one dreamed of 50 years ago."

The late honored Professor Mori was a martyr to science in the Tokyo earthquake. He devoted all the later years of his life to studying the relation of earthquakes to active volcanoes in Japan. He found that volcanoes were keys to the earthquake problem. He had almost reached the point of unlocking the mystery. All honor to his memory, and may science take up the key where he laid it down.

Detroit to Use Planes to Check Up on Taxes

Detroit, Mich.—In an effort to discover thousands of dollars' worth of taxable property which has escaped assessment in the past, a contract for an aerial photograph of the entire city of Detroit was recently awarded to a flying service.

It was believed that the aerial photographs when pieced together will show up houses, garages and other real estate which has never been surveyed by the assessors.

Several weeks will be required for the work, and the air snapshots will be used in conjunction with news maps being completed by the assessing department.

Keen-Eyed Indian Caddies Are Popular

Beak, Alberta.—The keen eyes and promptness of the Indian caddies are proving the ideal combination for caddies at this Canadian resort. Members of the tribe of Stoney Indians, many of them old braves, are employed as caddies. Their ability to see balls driven for great distances has won them popularity among golfers. Caddy masters say they have not yet lost a ball. A topped shot never brings a snicker, nor do they ever speak unless spoken to. Chief Sitting Eagle, descendant of famous warriors, is one of the best liked of the Stoney Indian caddies.

Closing of Factory Not a Calamity

read the meeting, but that he was not in a position to speak officially. He said that during the past two years the present city administration had been studying the economic condition of the city, but he was not at liberty at the present time to divulge what conclusions or plan of action had been arrived at.

C. of C. to Reorganize.

Mr. Heimle called attention to the fact that a meeting would be held next Monday evening in the common council chamber at the city hall to discuss a reorganization of the Chamber of Commerce which had been somewhat dormant for several years. He urged that every business man when he was invited attend the meeting. He said that the meeting was being called by an organization that was not connected with any of the business associations or the Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Heimle also read a financial statement of the Chamber of Commerce to date which showed that the income had been less than $5,000.

Rap. Ferry Service.

Fred C. Winters said that he had a matter which the Chamber of Commerce could act on without expense to the Chamber. He said that there was particularly fertile business field on the other side of the Hudson river which was not touched by the Kingston business interests. He had obtained some of the business because he had gone after it. He said that the business could not be obtained, however, without better ferry conditions. He said that when he came to Kingston in 1893 the ferry company had a ferry they were using and that today they were using the same boat. He believed that the matter should be taken up with the Public Service Commission to see if better ferry facilities could not be provided. "If the present ferry company does not want to provide better facilities," he said, "let them get off the river and allow someone else an opportunity."

Mr. Winters said that he would offer a resolution to the effect that the matter be taken up with the Public Service Commission.

"What organization present is offering that resolution," inquired someone in the room.

"None," said Mr. Winters, "I am offering it as an individual."

The resolution was seconded and adopted when put to a vote.

Morris Kaplan said that the meeting had been in session some time but nothing had been accomplished and that he would like to have the chairman appoint a committee of six to wait on the owners of the factory and see what could be done toward bringing another factory to the city.

Mr. Heimle said he would appoint as such a committee Morris Kaplan as chairman, Dr. Lown of the Central Association, Harry Kaplan of the Downtown Association, Max L. Reben, representing the real estate board of this city, William O'Reilly and Major Ashton Hart of the Rotary Club.

Mr. Reben's Suggestion.

Mr. Reben said that he had not intended to speak at first but since a committee had been appointed he thought it wise to do so. He said that his suggestion was not to have a committee wait on the factory owners, but to let the matter rest at the present time. When the owners of the plant were ready they would undoubtedly do something worthwhile. He said that it was not likely that the factory would be allowed to stand idle for any length of time. He said that there had been some talk of the site being acquired for armory purposes and the building torn down, but, in his opinion, that was a remote possibility.

He said that he was unable to get the owners of the plant to fix a price. He did not believe that the cigar company controlling the factory was anxious to sell.

Dr. Lown said that he would like to be excused from serving on the committee after he had heard Mr. Reben's views in the matter. Mr. Reben said he would also like to be excused from serving.

"In that case," said Morris Kaplan, "we all should be excused."

Finally after some discussion Mr. Kaplan withdrew his original motion to appoint a committee to wait on the owners of the plant and the committee that had been appointed was discharged.

No Trouble Selling Factory.

Arthur J. Burns said that at least three real estate firms of the city to his knowledge had attempted to get a price fixed on the factory, but had not been successful. "If a price was fixed and it was a reasonable price," he said, "there was no doubt but the factory would be sold within a reasonable time."

C. E. Wonderly of The Wonderly Company, said that considering the circumstances it would be a good thing if the Kingston Leader rescinded what it had been publishing the past few days and offered a motion calling on the Leader to repair what damage it had done, which was seconded by Mr. Gorman.

Morris Kaplan, however, had decided objections to the motion and said that he could see nothing wrong in what the Leader had printed. "I don't see anything wrong," he was telling the truth," he said. He also said that he failed to see where he had done anything wrong in calling the meeting for that night. "I don't see where I done any harm in it," said Mr. Kaplan.

Mr. Wonderly assured Mr. Kaplan that nothing that had been said was intended as being personal against Mr. Kaplan.

William O'Reilly said he thought that Mr. Kaplan and the Leader should be commended on what they had done.

Mr. O'Reilly said that the his going to his mind was to find other employment for those who had been thrown out of work by the factory closing. That was more important, he said, than renting the factory to some one else.

Motion to Lose.

Dr. Lown defended the Leader and said that he did not see why any exception should be taken as to what had been printed.

Mr. Gorman said that in seconding the motion he did not mean anything personal in regard to Mr. Kaplan; that Mr. Kaplan had proven an efficient worker in the Up-town Association since he had assumed the presidency, but he did think that too much emphasis had been placed on the city losing one factory and that considerable harm could be done the business life of the city. He said that he wanted to assure Mr. Kaplan that every up-town business man was behind Mr. Kaplan who had accomplished much as head of the Up-town Association.

Mr. Kaplan said he could not see why the chair should allow such a motion to be made. "I admit I called the meeting and I did not do anything wrong," Mr. Kaplan said that the whole trouble was that one man—he did not name him—had not started the idea of the meeting and so did not approve him. Mr. Kaplan said he wanted to assure that person that he was a 50 per cent better man than he.

After some further discussion the motion was put to a vote and lost.

Father Scully Spoke.

The Rev. Joseph B. Scully of St. Mary's Church, who was present at the meeting, was called on by Mr. Heimle for a few words. Father Scully said that the closing of a factory was a matter of vital importance to the business life of the city, and believed that much good could be accomplished in bettering business conditions in general in the city.

Fred C. Winters said that he would like to offer a motion thanking Morris Kaplan for what he had done to have the meeting held. He said that much good could be accomplished as it was the first time that he knew of when a meeting had been attended by representatives of not only the Chamber of Commerce but all three business associations. The motion was adopted by a rising vote.

Another Factory to Close.

A. J. Burns during the course of the meeting brought out the fact that the barrel factory would close down the first of the year, and that the property had been placed in his hands for sale. In reply to inquiry he said that he believed about twenty-five men were employed at the plant.

Just a Little.

Little Jane had a very annoying habit. When mother called her she didn't like to answer. One day she was seated crossly among her dolls away upstairs when she heard that familiar summons. Not deigning to respond to mother's wiles, she didn't answer. Finally mother came slowly up the stairway only to find Jane seated there. Mother questioned: "Why, Jane, didn't you hear me call?" Jane looked up shyly, speaking in meekness: "Well, mother, I think I heard just a little."

There is an estimating the damage the slovenly, rooting, lazy carp has done to our inland lakes, both in respect to driving away all other fish and in destroying the vegetation which provides food for wild fowl. The carp does his damage by rooting in the mud of the lake bottoms with his nose, killing the vegetation which provides food and shelter for the little fish and food for the wild fowl. Lakes infested with carp are always muddy.

Historic Records Show Jews as Fighting

It's a singular thing that people general should hold so strongly to the view that the Jew is one who practices the virtue, if it is a virtue, of assistance.

There is nothing in history to justify such a view and, indeed, everything to prove that he was no more than that turbulent, ruthless Jew Moses. That in the Middle Ages, later, in Russia, he was persecuted cruelly and completely and did not back was due to the fact that, though no weapons, he could be crushed by armed mobs and licensed soldiers.

Long before Napoleon placed Jew among his marshals the fighting quality of the race was known and praised. From the days of the Maccabees there was no insurgent so much dreaded by the Roman as the people of the narrow littoral that lay between Syria and the Egyptian deserts.

The story of the world war is full of the names of Jews in all the armies, and very certainly the British are not soon going to forget the valiant soldier from the Aztec lands who repeatedly swam ashore at Gallipoli and lighted flares on the beach to guide the incoming boat.—London Herald Post.

Another Rally In Stock Prices

New York, Nov. 15. (AP)—Another sharp rally in stock prices took place at the opening of today's market with buying influenced by the drop from 5 to 4 1/2 per cent in the New York Federal Reserve discount rate and the decrease of $710,000 in brokers' loans. Early gains of $1 to $1 1/2 a share were quite common.

Governors of the New York Stock Exchange will meet this afternoon to consider the question of continuing the abbreviated trading sessions next week.

It was reported from the floor of the stock exchange this morning that a standing order had been placed in the market for 200,000 shares of United States Steel common stock at $150 a share, the low point reached in Wednesday's reaction. The stock opened today at $162 a share, an overnight gain of $2.

Call money renewed at 5 1/2 per cent, the lowest renewal rate since August 17, 1928.

Sales on the New York Stock Exchange in the first half hour were 1,128,500, compared to 1,726,309 in the same period yesterday.

Sharp gains also took place in bank stocks, which are traded over the counter. Initial advances in leading New York bank shares ranged from $2 to $2 1/2 a share.

Island Status Unsettled

Wrangell Island is in the Arctic ocean, about 100 miles from the Siberian coast. A harbor in the south eastern part is in latitude 70 degrees 57 minutes north and longitude 178 degrees 10 minutes west. The island is about 70 miles long and 25 miles wide. It was sighted in 1857 by the captain of a United States sailing vessel. In 1881 vessels from the United States naval vessels landed on the island and claimed it for this country. The question of ownership is unsettled.

Jewel-encrusted Bible

The world's costliest Bible is that taken with other treasures from the palace of the czars at Tsarskoye Selo. One of its covers, which measures only five and a half inches by seven and a half, is encrusted with diamonds and emeralds in the form of a floral spray, with an interlocking monogram "A" of rubies, and on the other is a cross of fine diamonds. The clasp is of sapphires, and the text in tiny gold leaf print.

What to Do?

United States Naval academy officials are wondering what the naval world is coming to, says the Mississippi Tribune. A certain woman representative in the house has announced that she is seriously considering naming young women as her appointees to Annapolis. She observes that women have entered many fields traditionally supposed to be closed to the fair sex. But now that women are successfully entering the factories and the professions, she sees no reason why they should be discriminated against in the navy. The midshipmen are said to be grinning over the idea. They have no objection at all to a little feminine company. In fact, the first maid who enters the academy is said to be assured of a royal welcome. But the officials themselves are confronted with the problem of distracting the congresswoman from turning Annapolis into a boys' and girls' school. And this particular problem, it appears, has never been dealt with in any treatises written on naval strategy. We have no special solution for them, but must confess to some amusement over their distress.

In Germany the popular American "easy-payment" plan is called "stuttering." The exact German word for it is "stottern," which has given rise to good usage and is now to be given recognition in the dictionary as meaning both "to stutter" and to buy on instalments. America prides itself upon facility for coining words and phrases. Is not slang a synonym of the apt and happy speech which rolls so easily off the American tongue? Well, it appears that nation has a rival, says the St. Paul Pioneer Press. Here is Germany fashioning a peculiarly pertinent and spicy term. Money talks, Americans say. The Germans are still more expressive. They say it stutters when paid out on the instalment plan.

Governments representing 97 per cent of the land surface, 98 per cent of the total population and approximately 99 per cent of the total agricultural production of the world have agreed to co-operate in the "world agricultural census to be taken next year." The statement comes from Mr. L. M. Estabrook, director of the census for the International Institute of Agriculture, who returned to Washington last month from a Latin-American journey, during which he enlisted the co-operation of 13 countries in Central and South America. The undertaking, if successful, should add immensely to the sum of accurate and dependable information regarding world agriculture.

Benefits are to be arranged for musicians who have been left out of work (it would be a cruel joke to say "left out of play") by the sound synchronizing pictures. One of the most delightful of accomplishments is regarded as a trade, and the performer who gives new beauty to the tone of strings or horns cannot, like the mechanical inventor, appeal to the patent office to protect his talent.

The Springfield (Mo.) Press wants to know where all the old-fashioned barrel stave hammocks have gone. Most of them passed with the generation that was industrious enough to make them. A mail order civilization seems largely to have succeeded the day of home-made articles.

Machinery is expected to do the work of more men. The economic idealist will foresee more time for reading or for golf, as tastes may incline. There is no likelihood of reversion to the announcement, "So long as we have so much leisure on our hands, suppose we start a fight."

The most successful managers of money are invariably earnest in warning the man of small means not to speculate. And "small means" no longer means a few thousand dollars. In these days of big figures it may mean a million or two.

Assault Case Sent to Jury

Complainant Charges Morgan Dayton Grabbed Her and Struggled With Her for About a Half Hour—Other Witnesses.

Testimony of Miss Gertrude Holden, complainant in the case of The People against Morgan Dayton, now being tried in county court before Judge Joseph M. Fowler, substantiated the allegations presented by District Attorney Frederick C. Traver in his opening Thursday morning. Dayton is charged with assault in the second degree.

Miss Holden explained that she was returning from the village of Milton to her home on the back road with articles she had purchased, when Dayton accosted her as she was walking along the road. The event took place on the evening of January 30, 1929. The complainant stated that the defendant grabbed her and struggled with her for about a half hour, on the spot that covered the road side. She attempted to strike him with a flashlight that she was carrying with her, but was unsuccessful in her attempt to beat him off, she said. They struggled until Mrs. Nora LeRoy and Mr. Briscoe, the station agent at the West Shore crossing, came up the road and then the defendant ran away as the two approached, she explained.

Mrs. LeRoy had passed the couple struggling in the snow before. She thought they were two men, and asked that they stop fighting, but was told to "beat it". She did continue on her way until she met the station agent and after telling him about the fight returned to the scene with him.

Mr. Mackey called. Mr. Mackey, a friend of the defendant, and who was with him as he followed Miss Holden down the road, was the next to take the stand. He testified that he saw Dayton put his arm around Miss Holden's neck, heard her cry out and later saw her try to use the flashlight to beat her assailant off. Mackey said that he went on toward the pond where he intended to go skating, but that he saw no one there and returned to the scene, where he found Dayton struggling with Miss Holden in the snow by the roadside.

Dayton, Mackey said, asked him to help him, but Mackey said that he refused to do so, and began to return to the village. After he had gone about 400 feet Dayton came running up and continued on to the village with him. Dayton told Mackey that he was running away because some people were coming to the scene of the struggle. Mackey said that he had signed a statement for A. W. Lent, the defendant's attorney, in which some of the facts that he had testified to on the stand were contradicted. He also said that he had not talked with District Attorney Traver previous to the time he appeared for the grand jury.

Dr. Gervais of Milton was the next witness. The doctor testified that Miss Holden was brought to him with a cut on her leg, and another on her head. She was cold from the exposure, and was bleeding from cuts. Her clothing was drenched and she was in a dazed condition. Cross examined, the doctor testified that he found no other marks or bruises upon her body.

Sergeant Lockhart Testified.

Sergeant John Lockhart of the State Troopers was the next to testify. He saw the girl at the West Shore station in a dazed condition, with her clothing torn, and blood streaming down her legs from a cut upon her knee. He went to the scene of the encounter and there saw that a half inch crust of snow had been broken where the struggle occurred. At the doctor's behest and went to the defendant's home. The defendant, he said, used vile language about the complainant and also called his mother names when she asked about the affair. A cap, supposedly the defendant's, was given him, and he later turned it over to be sent to the district attorney with the other evidence. The cap could not be produced at the trial because the district attorney had never received it.

Testimony of Mrs. LeRoy substantiated the other testimony that the defendant and complainant were struggling on the snow. Mrs. LeRoy said that she was told to "beat it," and that she saw Mr. Briscoe and asked him to stop the fight which she thought was between two men. She said that she heard the complainant scream and struggle to get up. She met Mr. Briscoe as she left the scene of the struggle and returned with him to find that Miss Holden had left. Mr. Briscoe and Mrs. LeRoy took Miss Holden to the station, and that was the last that she saw of the plaintiff.

Mr. Briscoe substantiated Mrs. LeRoy's testimony, and added that he had phoned Michael Conroy, whom he thought was a deputy sheriff, and then phoned the doctor. Mr. Briscoe stated that he aided Miss Holden to the doctor's and that it was he that gave the cap to Sergeant Lockhart.

The last witness to take the stand Thursday afternoon was Mr. Conroy, who testified that he had called the state trooper and that Miss Holden was dazed and her clothing torn and covered with snow and blood. He also went with Sergeant Lockhart to get the defendant at his home, and substantiated the state trooper's testimony concerning the language used by the defendant.

The court was then adjourned until Friday morning so that the District Attorney could produce the cap and close his case.

Witnesses This Morning.

Justice of the Peace Howard Clark was the first witness to appear for The People in the Holden-Dayton case in county court this morning. The justice was called to testify what had become of the cap that Dayton is said to have been wearing on the night of the alleged crime. The justice testified that the cap had been given to him, and that he had hung it in the kitchen of his home. His wife, he said, had burned the cap during her house cleaning so he could not produce it in evidence. He was the last witness for The People.

The defense opened its case with Mrs. Harriet Dayton, mother of the defendant, who testified that her son had come home about 8:30 in the evening. The family then retired for the night and at about 10:30 Sergeant Lockhart came to the house and told Morgan that he was wanted for an affair with Miss Holden. Mrs. Dayton testified that her son did not use any vile language nor was anything said about the nature of the affair at that time. She also testified that Mackey, a state's witness, talked to her last Monday, and she stated that he told her that Assistant District Attorney Murray threatened to put him in jail if he didn't testify as he was told. Mackey denied this. Mrs. Dayton later under cross-examination stated that Mackey was asked to tell only the truth, which he said he would do.

Defendant Testified.

The defendant, Dayton, was then called to testify. He said that he met Miss Holden at the post office and asked her if he could walk home with her, and she told him that he could. He then went to the fire house and as he was leaving he met Mackey who walked with him until the two caught up with Miss Holden. Mackey then left them and went on to the pond. Dayton testified that he had walked with his arm around Miss Holden. They walked along and kissed each other, he said, and then he began to make advances to which she had not said anything to her. When Mackey came along, Dayton said that he told Miss Holden to beat it and then he walked back to the village with Mackey.

Cross examined by Mr. Murray, Dayton said that the two of them had been under a street light, and he couldn't answer when asked why he did not walk the rest of the way home with Miss Holden after he had asked her. Dayton said that he had been walking with Miss Holden and her sister several times and that he knew her for a "good ten years." He denied that he had forced Miss Holden to do anything or that she was cut on the leg or head. The defense then rested, and court adjourned to give the attorneys time to prepare summations.

Case Sent to Jury.

Summations of both attorneys were completed shortly after noon today, and the judge charged the jury before it was dismissed to discuss the facts.

Attorney Lent in his summation brought out the facts as stated by his witnesses, and dwelt upon the "reasonable doubt" which he said was necessary for a conviction. He classed Dayton as a youth, a lad, a mere boy, throughout the summation and stressed the fact that there must be some doubt in the minds of the jurors concerning whether the transaction was forced or voluntary.

District Attorney Traver scorned the fact that many witnesses for The People would lie for a person in whom they were not interested. He also scoffed at the language used by the defense lawyer concerning his client by calling him a boy. The District Attorney stated that the case was plain and there was no flaw for a reasonable doubt to enter the minds of the jury.

Judge Fowler charged the jury on the meaning of reasonable doubt and questions of law, explaining the charge of assault in the second degree. The judge told the jury to consider the views of the various witnesses, whether they were interested or not, and the soundness of their testimony. The case was handed to the jury at 12:16, and a verdict is expected this afternoon.

Miniature Books

Great quantities of tiny almanacs were sold in England, France and Germany, between 1825 and 1850. They were usually included with a magnifying glass in a case which a woman could carry in her purse. The best of these, the A. Schloess series entitled the "English Bifox Almanac," are the smallest books ever made with the exception of an edition of the "Rubaiyat." The "London Almanac" was issued from 1831 until after 1850 by the Society of Stationers. It was only two and one-fourth by one and one-fourth and elaborate bindings were common in this series.

San Francisco.—Opening handle at school, with a dozen officers to each private, were revealed here by the Jose W. Lilliam school, it was revealed, when an auditor's check was made of the pay roll. The school staff was discovered to be 22, consisting of 16 students, a principal and two teachers, to care for the instruction and needs of nine boys students. The school is a correctional institution founded 50 years ago and takes over recently by the city. At that time there were 22 inmates. The drop in attendance came under the regime of Juvenile Judge Michael Rorty, who returned the "incurables" to their homes whenever possible for "adjustment and correction." Only one teacher will now be provided, and the attendant staff will be cut to nine, with further cuts scheduled.

"Yes, Kettle," the Flatiron continued, "you really are a comforting old thing."

Separate Gown Is Favored for Fall

Vogue of Long Coat Centers Interest in Popular One-Piece Dress.

The separate gown is continuing its place in the forefront of fashion, writes a fashion authority in the New York Times. There the fashionable and the popular will, which is more popular than ever this season, have their place. The vogue of the long coat centers interest in the one-piece dress. As shown in recent style reviews, the princess model prevails, revealing the natural contour of the figure and emphasizing it with long, slender lines and with many new and interesting details. The silhouette is straight and slightly modified from the shoulder to a point below the hips, and flares with different variations below the knees. Always the skirt is long, and sometimes it hangs in points that almost touch the floor.

It is a subtle style of many innovations, in which the almost impossible has been accomplished with diagonal joinings and insets; a style simple in effect but in construction extremely intricate. The normal waistline is indicated in the design or with a belt, and in some models materials are fitted in bias widths over the hips to ripple at the bottom. In plainly tailored and semi-tailored frocks golets are inserted to widen the skirt, and in the more supple models the desired bias effect is created with a circular cut of the fabric. Often there is a flare at one side, while the other side is plain.

Importance of Neckline.

A gown in the new style may almost be distinguished by its neckline. There is a psychology in this, for by the treatment of the bodice about the throat and shoulders a gown is made complimentary to the wearer in many subtle ways. In contrast to the absolutely plain edge of a frock cut round or V, the new gowns have some sort of collar, scarf, fichu or clever arrangement of the material to give it dressed appearance.

The simplest little morning frock, especially a woolen frock, is made more chic and dainty with a collar and cuffs of linen, pique, batiste or crepe, and when they are made of white goods they are the more graceful in feeling and appearance.

Some pretty color combinations are effected by using materials in pastel and different light tints on dark frocks, and some of the newest models have the collar and cuffs of white or a color finished with crosshatch or embroidery. These are especially effective when the frock is a coat dress or other semi-tailored one-piece which has no touch of trimming other than a belt. Collar and cuffs of this sort are very much in demand for misses and juniors, especially for the everyday dress, college and school girls wear on the campus and in the classroom. Wherever and however a frock of this sort is worn it is alive and smart and of the type that will not soon go out of style.

A shade more formal, but still in tailored or semi-tailored class is the neck line made of a band or "mil-lner's fold" of a material in a color contrasting with that of the gown. In some new models of French make this neck finish is made a part of the frock itself. In one of wool jersey rich shades of honey beige and black are put together in sharp contrast. The bodice, in pique, extending over the hips, is cut with V neck, which is finished with a band of the black extending in a single line down the front almost to the waistline and ending in a point. The skirt, of black jersey, is laid in box pleats, with one at each side detached at the top and sewn on the bodice, leaving the front free. A narrow stitched belt of the black is worn quite low on the frock. A neckline of one sort and another is used to finish frocks of a somewhat softer sort—those of the light woollen and crepe. One attractive style of neck finish on a frock of brown tulle is a collar of the same material cut in slender revers. A band of sheer linen is added across the back and forms small square cuffs. A sort of deep experience crepe is drawn under the bodice to the point in front, where it is tied, and each of the ends, which are long, is finished in a narrow, pointed band of the linen. Each bit of the linen is worked with colored thread to a decorative stitch on original detail that is thoroughly smart for those colors and will show. The large scarf is shown in different arrangement, with wide drawn through a wide strap across the end of the V.

Lace Is Much Used.

Lace for treating the neckline and other details is the reclamation of the afternoon gown. In this style of dress, which is the height of the season, with its rich and the color for serious dress and management, lace is used in a variety of ways. Noting more picturesque nor more elegant effects in the fall fashions than a velvet gown in black or one of the rich tones, with collar and cuffs, or a large cape collar or a jabot of lace.

The new frocks are many, and the lines are numerous in pattern and quality.

Collar, Cuff Trimmings of Batiste and Valenciennes Lace.

but the tone must be mellow. Ivory, ecru and smoke are leaders in the fashionable tints. Velvet gowns are very satisfactory because their design is so simple, and the neck softened with lace completes the costume and makes a picture flattering to almost every woman. One of the most distinctive gowns for afternoon, from a well-known house in Paris, has a very long bias skirt of uneven hemline that touches the floor at points, and a deep cowl over the hips with a point in front, slim bodice, belt at the normal waistline, and a deep collar of heavy lace that forms little cups over the sleeves.

Sleeves are receiving more attention from couturiers than they have since the days of the historic leg-o-muttons and other extravagant fancies. When the sleeve is extended the long, plain, fitted model is usual, but here and there in the late collections are sleeves of new shape, which are made a feature of the new daytime gown. Something like the old-fashioned bishop sleeve is shown in a dahlia-colored velvet gown, which has a collar of ecru lace and batiste that is gathered into the sleeves at the elbow, caught into a band at the hand and edged with a tiny frill. A sleeve that is described by its designer as an "awkward" mode is made to fit the upper arm, but is without form below the elbow and widens at the hand with no trimming besides the stitching or hand with which the edge is finished.

Revival for House Dress.

The vogue of the individual gown has revived interest in house dresses. The charm of this type of dress has interested the modistes in designing many pretty and distinctly feminine frocks to be worn at home at any time except for entertaining. Entirely new styles and various novel combinations of fabrics and colors are introduced. These are shown in both the simplest little frocks for wear "about the house," and the more formal gowns.

In the creation of new designs certain liberties are being taken, some with delightful results. In several that have just been brought out, entirely new versions of the bodice are shown, using handsome metal cloths, brocades and prints with plain materials.

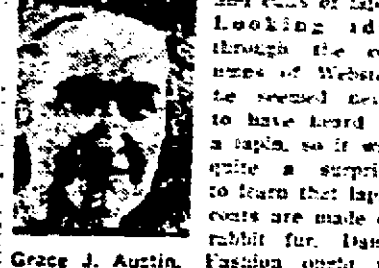

In a chic model from a Paris house the bodice, of gray and gilt lace, is made in the form of the old-time basque, semi-fitted and drawn in with a gilt belt at the normal waistline. A short circular skirt of the goods is attached and falls in a ruffle over the hips. A novel feature of the neck is the glancing yoke, which is closed with a line of gathers and buttoned several inches down from the throat, and is topped with a narrow roll collar. Buttons are used at the wrist to fasten the sleeves, which are long and tight. The skirt of this gown is made of plain gray flat crepe.

With the emphasis upon dress for the house, smart and embroidered frocks are coming into favor. These have heretofore appeared rather eccentric, but they are attracting particular attention now.

Dame Fashion Smiles

By Grace Jewett Austin

During the season Dame Fashion has been interested in styling the "lapin" coat, and the main fabric coats with collar and cuffs of lace.

Grace J. Austin.

enough of early French lessons to know what a "lapin" was, but she did not. This fur is in excellent style this winter, especially for young women. In California are many rabbit fur farms, and the soft, pretty white fur often seen on girls' coats is much more likely to be rabbit than ermine.

This proves that Mother Goose was a good fashion prophet when she wrote:

See, Baby Bunting,
Daddy's gone a-bunting
To get a little rabbit skin
To wrap the Baby Bunting in.

The furs, often purchased back in summer sales seasons, are now thoroughly appreciated, especially at chilly late football games. Dame Fashion remembers with a smile the friend she met last summer, walking along happily on a decidedly warm day, who whispered to her, "I've just bought myself the most beautiful Hudson seal coat." But for such a pleasure as that one would almost be willing to run a temperature!

There is no doubt in any one's mind that the cult of color is increasing its number of worshippers. "What beautiful blue gloves!" some one exclaimed. They were indeed a soft rich light blue, almost a forget-me-not color, but softened by the blended hue which washable doekins takes. They harmonize rarely with the darker blue so much the mode this year. And there are soft light-green doekin gloves as well, for the popular green dresses.

It is amazing how beautiful the new wash gloves have become. Back in the days of the mothers wash gloves certainly looked like the poor relations of those who had to travel away and get a benzine bath in order to be rejuvenated. Now when a washable glove costs almost as many dollars as there are fingers on one's hand, it becomes an article to be viewed with respect.

New color combinations are always of interest. For instance it would not seem as though red and violet would combine, yet Dame Fashion saw a rich looking negligee in those very colors of silk. Who was it that first had the good fun of trying colors together to see if they would harmonize? It was Eve, it certainly ought to have kept her busy, without allowing time for apple eating.

Rob Guests of $400,000 in Gems

Buffalo, Nov. 15 (AP)—Bandits of $35,000 if taken alive and $75,000 if dead were offered today for seven men, who, armed and masked, raided the suburban home of John L. Thomson, Jr. last night, during a prominent young society couple.

Lining the eighteen guests and half a dozen servants against a wall, the robbers stripped them of jewelry valued by the guests at about $100,000. They also obtained a small amount of cash and fur wraps taken from an upper floor.

The most valuable item in the list of stolen jewels is a triple string of matched pearls, owned by Mrs. May Van Cleaf, said by one of the guests to be worth between $250,000 and $300,000.

Mrs. Philip Metz, wife of one of the business executives of the Buffalo Evening Times and a daughter of Norman E. Mack, estimated the value of her jewelry taken by the bandits at $65,000.

Miss Eleanor Cameron, of Waco, Texas, who, with her niece, Courtland Van Cleaf, was the guest of honor at the party, is also said to have lost jewels valued at a high sum.

When the seven bandits burst in upon the dinner party, the guests at first thought it was a prank by friends but after two of them, a man and a woman, had been felled by blows of fists or revolver butts, they realized the seriousness of their predicament and quietly submitted to being searched and stripped of their jewels.

Frank B. Baird, prominent financier, uncle of Miss Cameron, announced early today that he stood ready to pay a reward of $5,000 each for the capture of the seven bandits alive or $10,000 each for their dead bodies.

Wall Street Tax Cutting.

Albany, Nov. 15 (AP)—Reports seeping into the Capitol that Republican legislative leaders were considering possibility of moving to cut the state income or corporation tax were put at rest with dispatch today. Senator Charles J. Hewitt, chairman of the fiscal committee of the upper legislative house said: "The only tax cutting that's going to be done is being done now in Wall Street."

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

SHRINKING PORK

THAT pork killed during the wane of the moon shrinks unduly in cooking is stated by the American Folk-Lore society to be a general superstition in the United States. We have here something of the magic of association, the waning moon, the waning pork, but the superstition appears to be mainly an inheritance of those ideas which, since the moon goddess was first worshiped, have connected the different phases of the moon with terrestrial affairs.

But why is the pig selected as the animal whose flesh would shrink in cooking if killed in the wane of the moon? It may be asked. Herodotus answers that when he states that it was unlawful to sacrifice a pig to any god but the moon and Caeceus and then only at the full moon. And except on these occasions people were forbidden to eat of his flesh.

"We kill a pig to eat its pork—we sacrifice to the moon. But the moon is not full—we have sacrificed unlawfully. Something will happen to that pork therefore. What? The moon is waning—the pork which we cook to eat will do likewise.

Of course, the farmer is not aware of the law as laid down by Herodotus, but he has inherited from unnumbered ages the belief that the pork will shrink, and he believes it to be a fact.

THE LIFEBOAT

IT MAY seem to travelers of great ocean liners, observing the lifeboats fastened to the upper deck, that such small craft would stand slight chances of braving the open sea. The fact is, however, that although it looks like a shell, a lifeboat is specially constructed with various contrivances for saving people from wrecked or imperiled vessels in storms or heavy seas when an ordinary open boat would be impractical and dangerous. And unless a boat is provided with some distinctive properties such as self-bailing, and self-righting, it is not a lifeboat in the strict sense of the word. It would be merely a "surf boat," the name applied to small open boats that are launched from the beach to take fishermen through the surf.

The invention and the origin of the lifeboat as we know it today, are credited to an Englishman, Lionel Lukin. In 1783, Lukin, a coachmaker of an inland town near London put afloat on the Thames a boat which was the result of some years of experiment with water tight compartments and other essentials of buoyancy and stability which are the cardinal requisites and the feature of the modern lifeboat. Because of several defects, however, Lukin did not succeed in bringing his invention into practical use. It was not until after his death, through improvements on his product made by expert boat builders of English harbor towns, that the middle of the last century saw the evolution of the modern lifeboat. And though practically every coast town in this country is equipped with lifeboats of the most approved type, it was from the English models that they were built and it is as a British contribution to invention that the lifeboat must be credited.

Valuable Turtle Species

The Smithsonian Institution says that the loggerhead turtle in the sea, when it reaches maximum size, is said to be invulnerable. However, it may occasionally be attacked by the swordfish, which fights anything. It is also possible that when the loggerhead turtle is young it may be swallowed by large fish. The greatest enemy of this turtle is the human race. The loggerhead turtle is caught and sold for food; also its eggs are dug up and are of great value for their oil content.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Nov. 15 (AP)—The recovery in stock prices which started Monday gained considerable momentum today from a series of constructive financial developments. Trading failed to maintain the pace set yesterday, or the day before, but there was a steady demand for the seasoned dividend-paying issues, scores of which were carried up 2 to 20 points. A few specialties recorded even larger gains.

The reduction from 5 to 4 1/2 per cent in the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate, which accompanied a further decrease of $710,000,000 in brokers' loans, was followed today by a lowering of acceptance and time money rates and a drop in the call money renewal rate to 5 1/2 per cent, the lowest level since August, 1928. Little business was being done in the time money market because of the recent rapid changes in rates.

On the elevator ran up 25 points. Detroit Edison 33, and Ingersoll Rand, American Machine and Foundry, J. I. Case, American Tobacco A. Col. United Carbon, R. H. Macy, and Allied Chemical sold 10 to 20 points higher. Johns-Manville, ran up 14 1/2. Underwood Elliott Fisher 13 1/2. General Electric, Eastman Kodak, Missouri Pacific, Common and United States Industrial Alcohol advanced 10 to 11 points.

United States Steel Common moved up to 167, an overnight gain of 7 points, and then eased to 165. Moderate recessions also took place in some of the other leaders on week-end profit-taking in the last half hour. Quotations given by Parker McElroy & Co., members N. Y. ### Rest-Proof Steel Easy to Weld, Says Expert

Washington.—Rest-Proof steel is easy to weld by the oxyacetylene process and is even more rest-proof after welding than before, due to loss of carbon, silicon and manganese during welding. These findings by W. Hoffmann, German metallurgist, have just been announced by the national advisory committee for aeronautics here.

The physical characteristics of rest-Proof steel are better than those of soft-steel, but the hardness of the metal due to welding must be removed by heat treatment.

"Friendship" Carried to Extremes in This Case

Billy Muldoon—before he gained fame as a champion wrestler and trainer of John L. Sullivan for his epic fight with Jake Kilrain—was once a New York city policeman. And thereby hangs this tale, told by Edward Van Every in his book about "The Solid Line of Sport."

Muldoon was patrolling his beat one day when several excited citizens reported to him that "murder" was being done in a nearby house. Hurrying to the scene Muldoon heard groans emanating from a room, the door of which was locked. Forcing an entrance he found on the floor in a welter of blood, a young negro, to all appearances fatally wounded. Muldoon bent down and asked: "Can you tell me who did this?" "Yes, sah," came the faint answer. "A friend of mine."—Kansas City Star.

Remedy for Divorce

According to an American medical man "a pint of milk per day and two oranges, eaten by a couple threatened by divorce, will straighten matters out." We already know that "an apple a day keeps the doctor away," and grapefruit is supposed to be useful in fighting flu. But the idea of curing matrimonial troubles by milk and oranges is new. Green grocers are already inviting customers to "Eat oranges and be happy at home." One of them has gone even further. He is displaying notices: "Eat our peaches if you want Him to propose." "Plums for breakfast mean a good day's work." "Our broccoli will bring you business success." "A cauliflower a day means a magnetic personality."—Montreal Family Herald.

Color's Great Influence

Man has apparently become careless about one of the most important items in his environment—color. As soon as he realizes fully the inhibitive and repressive influence of drab, uninteresting color surroundings, the vision about him will be immediately transformed. Man has always conquered or changed conditions unfavorable to his best development. There is no reason to believe that he will not rise to the present situation and reinstate into his daily life the color which is so important to his well-being.

Bottle Gas

Bottled gas is refined and compressed from the vapor that rises from all wells that are in production and even from wells that have been pumped dry. It is "bottled" under the form of a low-pressure liquid which on being released resumes its gaseous form and burns in a gas jet. This casing head gas, as it is known among all men, is a rich natural gas. It is compressed, refined and the liquid stored in steel bottles or drums which are strong enough to withstand the low pressure of the semiliquid gas.

From Fingers to Forks

Knives, forks and spoons in their primitive form were used from very early times. The table knife became popular after the Seventeenth century. During the period of transition from fingers to forks, knives were used for cutting as well as for eating. Forks were introduced into England in the Sixteenth century. The custom came from Italy. Queen Elizabeth was the first English sovereign to use a fork. Her nobles thought it a piece of great affectation and her example was only slowly followed.

Increases in the Family

Five-year-old Freddie was spending the afternoon at a neighbor's house. The neighbor's cousin was also there. "How many are there in your family?" asked the cousin.

"Five," replied the small boy promptly.

"Why, Freddie?" said the neighbor.

"There's only your mother, father, sister and you."

"I know," was the answer, "but we got a dog this morning."

Eyeglass Law Is Held Valid

The legislature of 1928 amended the Education Law of this state by adding a section which makes it unlawful to sell at retail in any store, or established place of business, any spectacles, eyeglasses or lenses for the correction of vision unless a duly licensed physician or duly qualified optometrist, certified under this article, be in charge of and in personal attendance at the booth, counter or place where such articles are sold in such store or established place of business.

Feeling aggrieved thereby certain storekeepers dealing in such articles brought suit in the U. S. District Court, requesting an injunction prohibiting the enforcement of this law. The court refused the injunction and dismissed the complaints, from which decision the complainants appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States. It was argued by the complainants that they sold only ordinary spectacles with convex spherical lenses which merely magnified and could do no harm; and that the supposed benefits under the law were a cloak for establishing a monopoly. The Supreme Court, in an opinion by Mr. Justice Holmes, has recently affirmed the decision of the lower court, upholding the validity of the statute.

Labor Not Everything

The printed record of mankind is full of comments and counsel about work. Bismarck is often quoted: "To youth I have but three words of counsel—work, work, work." Why only three? Why not "work, work, work, work"? Or why not just one word? "Work!" If the boss of the shop said what Bismarck said it would not mean much, except to the employee he said it to: but because the great Bismarck said it, it gets into the books of quotations. It is nonsense. Work is admirable, and necessary, of course. But a man may work, trebly as Bismarck advised, and still be a very useless atom in civilization. Labor is noble—every one says so. But it is not all of life.—Boston Herald.

So Old Dobbin Again Moves to Back Seat

Winchester, Kan.—That the tractor and the motor car virtually have made "Old Dobbin" useless on the farm, was demonstrated at the Mike Hoffman public sale, held five miles east of here. A mule brought $1.50. Several horses sold for $2.50 apiece, and a span of work mares brought $12.50 each.

NEW CRAFT WILL CRAWL ON RIVER

Caterpillar Tracks Drag Vessel Through Shallows.

St. Louis.—Secrets of a new kind of boat that has power to move on dry land like a war-time tank were revealed here. Its motive power is a pair of caterpillar tractor tracks, that run beneath the bottom of the vessel. It will not be set on climbing banks, unless the pilot falls asleep, because the bracing of the hull is made for water, and would be unlikely to support the weight on land. It is a lowboat designed for navigating in two feet of water and meeting some of the problems of American river transportation.

The moving tracks run one under each side of a nearly flat bottom, and each one has its own power plant. The craft are rudderless, for they steer by the tracks like land tanks, and turn around in their own length. Their speed is eight to nine miles an hour and six miles with a tow.

The tracks are endless belts of flexible steel, that rise above water level to re-enter the boat through tunnels running the length of the hull on each side. Automatic doors close the ends of the tunnel, except to the tracks.

Like duck feet, these new fashioned boat pedals have to be webbed to grip the water. The webs are flat steel plates, two feet wide and a foot deep, fastened to the tracks so as to extend vertically downward into the water.

The tracks are driven by electricity generated by Diesel engines. Claim is made that three gallons of oil runs the boat an hour.

Even if they never begin taking to the highways alongside the river, the new towboats are designed for a revolution in waterway freight transportation. This revolution is to imitate railroad freight methods in order to recover for the rivers some of the freight hauling prestige that they lost to land lines.

The towboats are made to haul long lines of barges. The analogy does not end there. The barges look like railroad box cars, although their capacities equal three to five standard freight cars. They couple so that they will turn about sharp bends without losing their alignment.

Small towboats are designed to do switch engine duty at various ports. It is claimed that a "switch engine" boat can hook a barge to the main tow without stopping the procession.

Impenetrable Vault to Hold England's Gold

London.—An army of men who have been working for years under the strictest oaths of secrecy are now completing the new vaults for the Bank of England. They have transformed them into a veritable fortress of steel and stone, a $25,000,000 castle which will be able to defy any attack, even from the air. Bombs will be useless and underground tunnels will meet with impenetrable barriers.

As for attempts on the ground, engineers estimate it would take weeks of hard work with dynamite and oxy-acetylene torches even to damage the huge steel doors which lead to the vaults.

Some of the vaults, buried deep in the ground are now finished and they embody the safe-builders' most perfect designs, and the most modern type of reinforced concrete and steel.

Concrete walls seven feet thick run around the vaults. Inside the walls are steel grills built into slabs of concrete and passages where armed guards will patrol when the vaults are full of bullion. The vault doors are solid steel and weigh 12 tons each.

And though they are so delicately balanced on their hinges that a child could swing them open, once they are locked they are strong enough to withstand the force of tons of dynamite.

Honeycombed in the maze of stone and steel will be scores of alarms and bells, to shrill out a warning as soon as any intruder enters.

The bank has its own water supply, electricity plant, and army of guardsmen, and in case of attack—by revolutionary forces, for example—could withstand siege indefinitely.

Ship Sunk 30 Years Ago Being Washed Ashore

Havana, Cuba.—Thirty years ago the Ward line steamship Alexandria burned and sank near Guanabo beach, several miles from Havana. Action of the waves has recently washed the wreck near the shore where it has been identified by a member of the crew who escaped, badly burned, and who since has made a living as a fisherman at Boca Ciega. The hull, masts and funnels of the ship can be clearly seen against the white sands at the bottom of the bay.

Jews Celebrate Return of 21 Scrolls of Law

Vilna.—A great celebration took place in the village Kurikla on the occasion of the restoration of 21 scrolls of the law which had been confiscated by the Belarussians during the war. The scrolls were returned through the efforts of the Polish government.

The synagogues were crowded as the Jews of the village gathered to celebrate the return of the scrolls.

Fur Coats Are Either Longer or Shorter.

New York—The world has become fur conscious. Fur coats have come out of showrooms or storage and are again on parade. They are either longer or shorter. The short fur coat is no longer restricted to sports garb, and has become in fact a unit of the formal costume. The long coat has become longer, either all around or at the back.

Fur coats have acquired belts, sometimes of fur. This is especially true of dyed lapin models which have registered at all football games of the year as well as in other places. Rummie coats particularly. There is something young and daring about belting a fur coat. It implies a slender waistline for the belt is where nature evidently intended a belt to be. Creamy lapin has proven one of the successes of a year largely concerned with camouflaging, such humble pelts as the rabbit so that they may pass muster with the soft priceless pelts of the rich. Lapin and beaver have made great strides this fall, catching up to caracul, gairak, otter, muskrat, raccoon and other sports furs.

Dyed blue fur has also become a leader, but such a fur is naturally associated with formal coats, and costume suits. Blue fox, cross and red fox are much liked on black, red fox being also effective on green or brown. Black coats lavishly trimmed with white caracul, ermine or lapin are stunning, especially when opening over a white satin blouse or costume.

Kitchen Hints.

The kitchen is very fond of music. Their native music consists chiefly of bang, clunk and rattle, many of which produce considerable musical effects. Although the tunes to which they are sung are very crude, they can be tuned to hypnotism. The melodies are said to be very pleasing and a number of them have been published with corresponding music.

Paris and New York Conservative Toward the Long Skirt.

New York—One seems justified in thinking of Paris and New York as inclined to go to extremes in the acceptance of a new mode. It is therefore of unusual interest to learn that some of the smaller cities have gone more whole heartedly into long dresses, while Paris and New York are shivering on the brink—or compromising with fate or fashion by wearing skirts four or five inches below the knee. The more conservative attitude of these cities may be regarded as indicative of the final result of the war being waged for or against the long skirt. A general acceptance of the indicated waistline is also reported.

Coats, so far, show a decided tendency toward dipping hemlines, it being more nearly true to designate them as up in the front rather than down in the back models. The placement of fur borders or other trimmings is largely responsible for the uneven line. Fur trimmings are highly important and rather unusual, the fur on the sleeve for instance rarely being at the cuff unless the cuff be deep enough to mount to the elbow. While the all black coat is the choice of the ultra smart, there are many black coats trimmed with cross or red fox, or with other contrasting furs such asitch, beaver and caracul. Mention has already been made of black coats trimmed with white fur.

For evening the formal note is insistent. One wears gloves, reverts to jeweled shoulder straps and affects long skirts and deeply cut neckline. Occasionally fur is added, either by way of a bow, or a border and the top of the shoulder may be concealed by a bertha or even a tiny cap sleeve. Necklines are softly draped in many instances, this being also true of day time dresses.

After digesting the reports from the mid season openings recently held in Paris one feels renewed confidence in the dahlia shades, in all blues, and in greens while reds, especially currant and raspberry were repeated with great frequency.

Among the somewhat revolutionary changes which must be noted is the acceptance by well dressed women of colored shoes for street wear. Suede in rich shades of brown, burgundy and dark green and blue are among the best liked street colors. Reports from abroad are concerned with bottle green as a color for sports shoes. Lizard in combination with leather is endorsed by Paris bootmakers who also show an interest in prune kid shoes with matching purses. From Hellstern comes the report of a strong revival of patent leather. Pumps are generally favored for town wear and models with strap are approved for evening, many of these are of crepe de Chine matching the frock with which they are worn, while for the black gown it is considered chic to wear broadcote lame in gold with rich, and rather dark colorings. An innovation in ensembles was recently noted in a Fifth Avenue shop where footwear was matched to costume jewelry.

HAVE EXAGGERATED IDEA OF THEIR OWN IMPORTANCE

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP).—The Postoffice Department lost approximately $5,000,000 last year on carelessly addressed mail, a large part being the direct result of business firms having an exaggerated idea of their own prominence.

Many firms doing a large advertising business have labored under the impression that not having a street address indicated great importance in the home town and impressed customers with the fact that "even in New York and Chicago we are too well known the postman needs no help in finding us."

The result has been millions of letters delayed for "directory service."

Last year approximately 200,000,000 letters had to be especially handled by clerks hired to fill out inadequate addresses. The service in New York city alone costs $500 a day. Of the 200,000,000 inadequately addressed letters 25,000,000 found a final resting place in the dead letter office.

UNORDERED GOODS BY MAIL SWINDLE

The season just prior to the Christmas holidays witnesses the greatest distribution of unordered merchandise, according to the National Better Business Bureau.

The Bureau's report explains that there are many schemers who send merchandise, unsolicited, to people whose names they obtain from the telephone directory or some other convenient list, and then attempt to collect for it if it is not returned.

The report states that boxes of unordered greeting cards are unnecessary burdens to many mail carriers at this season, and that they are a further annoyance to the recipients who did not request them but who are asked to pay for them.

"The receipt in the mail of packages that may contain bags, shirts, neckties, rain coats, sheet music, pens, pencils, electrical fixtures, novelty jewelry, socks, perfume, lingerie, sweaters, handkerchiefs, or even so-called stock certificates is looked upon by most persons as an unmitigated nuisance which they could very well forego," states the Bureau.

Accompanying the merchandise is a communication asking the recipient to send one dollar or more for it or to return it. Frequently the selling appeal purports to come from "some poor soul who is seeking to regain his health," is trying to build up a little capital while he is unjustly detained in prison, or endeavoring to procure funds for the "education" of his children.

The Bureau statement points out that if the recipient of the package does not remit it within a few days, there begins a series of dunning letters which sometimes threaten legal action for collection. Once the goods arrive what should be the recipient's attitude toward them? Must he accept them? Must they be returned? After securing legal opinions, the National Better Business Bureau answers each question "No."

The Bureau further advises that the recipient accord the merchandise a reasonable degree of care, that it should not be appropriated for use by the recipient unless the recipient intends to pay for it and that he is in no way obligated to return it in the sender even though return postage and suitable mailing carton is enclosed.

The merchandise should be held only for a reasonable length of time, during which the sender may instruct a qualified agent to call for it. If such agent does call, the recipient has the right to demand the payment for storage charges before turning it over to the agent.

Almost the only way to end this unordered merchandise nuisance is to make it unprofitable, and the best way to do is to follow the procedure as outlined above by the National Better Business Bureau.

Village Has No Bank But Industry Aplenty

Monsanto, Ill. (AP)—This two-by-four town, which has no bank, claims to be the richest industrial community of its size in the country. Incorporated three years ago, Monsanto has nine manufacturing plants with an assessed valuation of more than $16,000,000 and an actual value many times that amount.

Huge chemical works, a large steam-generated electrical plant and the only electrolytic copper refinery in the mid-west are three reasons for its opulence.

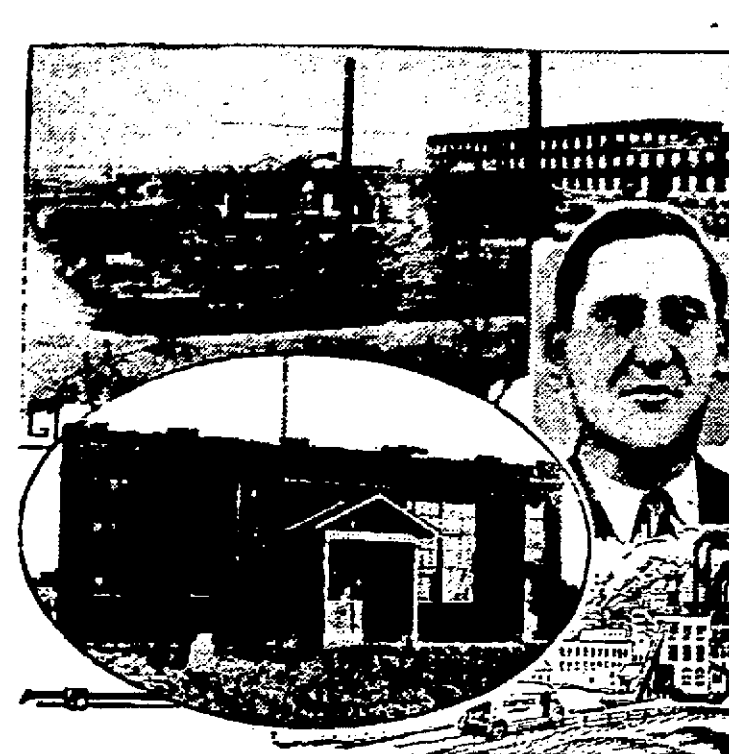

Monsanto's products go to all parts of the nation daily.

Unlike many towns that rise to industrial importance overnight, Monsanto is no real estate project. The town doesn't even have a chamber of commerce to hallyhoo its two square miles of area.

Monsanto is unique in more ways than one. Its mayor, Leo Saugat, is the only man in town who doesn't work in a factory. He depends on his 14-acre farm for a living. Most of that farm, moreover, lies within the city limits. Saugat has been mayor since Monsanto was incorporated in August, 1926.

The town's population represents only a fraction of workmen on Monsanto payrolls. There is no church or picture show, but there is a school with 60 pupils.

Monsanto's town hall, formerly a chemical testing laboratory, has

Directly across the Mississippi from St. Louis, Monsanto has experienced rapid development since it

GOTHAM VAULT HAS BIG SILVER HOARD

Bars and Ingots Come From All Over World.

New York.—The biggest store of pure silver in the United States lies under the pavement in Spruce street. Its repository is the vault, reaching out under the street, of a company which so dominates the world silver market that it is virtually a clearing house for the metal.

Bars and ingots of the treasure are constantly coming into the vault from the mines of the world, and as constantly being shipped away to mints and jewelry manufacturers in the United States and Europe, and to China and India, which, because of their silver coinage system, are two principal silver-consuming nations of the world.

Insurance Rate Low.

The business of getting the pure silver in and out of the vault is highly organized. Armored cars and caged wagons bring it in and carry it away. It is carried up and down between the sidewalk level and the steel vault in electric elevators, and armed attendants are always on guard. The trucks that carry the treasure back clear up to the elevator shaft so that the silver can be transferred with minimum exposure, and most passers-by do not even stop to watch the operation. At the docks the metal is handled under guard, and on ships and liners it is kept in specie rooms.

So efficiently is it transported that the insurance rate from New York to India is only 15 cents on $100 worth, and in 25 years not an ounce of silver has been stolen.

Is Handled "Naked."

The silver is handled "naked," with no covering around the bars. Handlers are careful not to rub them against each other and, although the metal in its pure state is comparatively soft, the loss from scratching in shipment averages but five ounces in every 3,333 pounds. Before the war London was the great silver bullion market. Now New York has usurped the place, principally because the use of silver has become so much more extensive here.

The phrase "born with a silver spoon in his mouth" hasn't much significance any more in this country, for almost every family has some silverware now, and since the war American industry has found many new commercial uses for silver. The laws require sterling silver to be 925-1000 pure. The silver in the Spruce street vaults runs higher than 980-1000 pure.

Women Give Cup to Town's Model Husband

Cushing, Okla.—A man who never drinks "more than enough," swears only moderately, drives a new car, uses tobacco in every form, plays a moderate game of golf and fills in at bridge only when forced to has been selected the "model" husband by the Cushing Women's Professional and Business club. Dwight Snell, the model, was presented a silver loving cup by the club.

Doctor Roll Crows

Washington.—The average American has at his beck and call more doctors than has the citizen of any other nation. The United States bureau of education has discovered by a survey. And the number of physicians is increasing every year.

America'sills now support 148,322 physicians. It was found.

LIGHTS BY GRANT DIXON OF NEW YORK

For Baby

New York.—There are, even in this day of fabulous royalties and sales of motion picture rights, writers who are not wealthy. Of several such that I know, one recently became a father and all his friends showered the young son with gifts—appropriate clothing, silver spoons, mugs and what-not.

"But the best present of all," the writer told me, "is one good old George X sent. George gave my young hopeful two $20 gold pieces, and my wife and I have been instructed not to start the child's bank account with them. Instead, we must, each morning, hold the coins close to the baby's eyes and clink them together.

"As he grows up he will realize what real money is, and he will be trained to grab for it whenever he sees it."

Detective Story

A colored man walked into a pawn shop with a $250 camera. The pawn broker was suspicious and questioned the man regarding where he got such an expensive instrument. The colored gentleman thereupon departed hastily, not even troubling to take the camera, and not getting a ticket for it, either. The pawnbroker turned the camera over to police, who found a roll of film in it. This they had developed and prints made from it. The pictures were scenes aboard a yacht and at obviously expensive beaches. "Aha!" said the detectives. "A rich man owns this camera." One snapshot showed a close-up of a man in yachting costume, and a detective recognized the subject. It was Edmund O'Brien, an actor and the son of a former Supreme court justice. Pursuing the picture clue still further, the detective learned that the camera had been stolen from O'Brien, who hadn't even bothered to notify the police.

Sensitive Fellow

Here is a story they are telling about Jimmie Durante, comedian. Durante, who used to play the piano for a singing waiter named Eddie Cantor, is known far and wide as Schnozz, because of his de Bergerac nose. He is, perhaps, sensitive. At any rate, rather than have people laugh at him, he expends tons of energy in making them laugh with him.

He was playing golf one day, out on Long Island. Part of the course lay alongside a railroad track, near a station. A crowded passenger train had pulled in, just as Durante was getting ready for a tee shot.

Decidedly nervous, Durante was the last of a foursome to drive. He took a terrific swing, and missed the ball entirely. Without a word he started down the fairway.

His companions called to him: "Hey, you missed the ball!"

Durante gestured for them to pipe down: "I know it," he said, guardedly, "but look at all of those people in the train watching me. They don't know it."

Acid Air

Chemical properties in New York atmosphere are hard on woodwork. It has been found after an examination of the steeple of St. Paul's church on lower Broadway. The church is 335 years old, and in excellent condition, but the wooden steeple has been eaten away. Scientists insist that it is chemicals that have done it. For the steeple has received as much care as any old Colonial mansion, many of which look as good as new. The old steeple is being demolished and will be replaced by one made of metal, colored to resemble the original. Even that may not last, for not long ago it was discovered that the metal steeple of Justice, atop the Municipal building, was all but losing her flowing robes, due to a peculiar rivet disease in her construction.
